

Astronauts Tell Their Story

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Apollo 12 commander Charles "Pete" Conrad, who set his Intrepid landing craft down on the lunar surface in a blinding cloud of dust, said today future moon crews can land safely using only their instruments if necessary.

"I feel there's no problem whatsoever in making a completely blind landing up there as long as you have a good assessment of the landing site," Conrad said. "You can get this in a quick look (out the window) on the way in."

In his first post-flight news conference Conrad also rebuffed the "one per cent" who had complained about a lack of scientific emphasis in Apollo flights and said his mission last month started the true exploration of the moon.

Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean used slides and movies to illustrate their description of America's second lunar landing.

Easier Than Expected

Conrad and Bean, who stayed on the moon 32 hours and made two treks across the surface while Gordon orbited alone in the Apollo 12 command ship, said they found working the weak moon gravity easier than expected.

But they said future lunar landing crews will have to be prepared to cope with a "fine gray cloud of dust around their feet everywhere they go."

"You always had a little dust cloud flying whenever you had your feet going," Conrad said. He said this was largely responsible for the trouble they had with dust getting all over experiments on a nuclear-powered science station they set up on the surface.

The dust at Apollo 12's landing site was heavier than expected, Conrad said. His lander's descent engine started kicking up a dust storm 75 feet above the surface and "it finally blocked out the landing site completely."

Early Concern

At first space agency officials were concerned that this might make it dangerous to try to pinpoint landings planned on more rugged areas of the moon during future flights. Conrad, however, said the dust did not raise an insurmountable problem.

Meanwhile, according to the AP, after years of guarding against the use of its astronauts as fund raisers, the space agency is letting the Apollo 12 moon crew and a number of colleagues take part in a money-raising dinner for the Jewish National Fund Sunday.

The dinner is a $100-a-plate affair widely heralded as honoring Apollo 12 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Alan L. Bean, and Richard F. Gordon Jr. and the other U.S. astronauts.

Supporters include Texas Gov. Preston Smith, former Texas Gov. John Connally, Houston Mayor Louis Welch, two U.S. senators, six congressmen and other Texas officials. Television's Johnny Carson is scheduled to be the master of ceremonies.

The Manned Spacecraft Center said the astronauts were invited individually and that an official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration distributed the invitations to them before he knew it was a fund-raising affair.

Money raised will go to the Jewish National Fund for planting trees in Israel. About 1,400 persons are expected to attend.

In the past, the space agency has carefully screened invitations to astronauts. Those obviously intended to raise money or make commercial use of the astronauts' names were excluded.

High Creek Waters Almost Launched a Rondout Drydock

High water lapped at the very doors of area marinas Thursday afternoon as high tide combined with heavy runoff to send the Rondout Creek over its banks in low-lying sections of the city.

Boats could have sailed right up to the Captain's Table (top left) at peak high water. Dwyer's winter drydock appears close to launching as high tide rolled in around trees and picnic table (bottom photo).

Sections of the Strand were barricaded for a brief period yesterday afternoon. Collapse of a retaining wall on Delaware Avenue also required barricades.

In Rosendale, the Rondout creek crested at noon at the James Street Bridge at about eight feet above normal. The flood control project which is at the 66 per cent completion mark contained the flood waters very well. Partially completed ponding areas prevented Joppenbergh Mountain runoff from flooding Main Street in the village. (Haines photos).

Tax Reform Bill Goes to the House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has overwhelmingly passed its veto-threatened tax reform bill, sending it to a conference committee where House members wait with their own quite different version.

The conference committee has a heavy chore in reconciling the bills, but leading members of both delegations say they expect to come up with a compromise President Nixon can sign. The Senate, which ended almost a fortnight of debate by approving the bill 69-22 Thursday afternoon, sparked Nixon's ire by providing a 15 per cent increase in Social Security benefits and a boost in personal income tax exemptions from $600 to $800.

The House bill makes no provision for either matter, although that chamber is considering a separate Social Security proposal.

Opponents railed vainly against the bill Thursday, charging its differences between tax relief and revenue gain amount to more than $5 billion and is fiscally irresponsible. It was this cost that Nixon cited when he said he will veto the bill if it is unchanged.

However, it seems certain the 15 per cent Social Security benefit boost, and many other of the tax breaks will be retained either in the tax bill or in separate legislation.

The Senate bill raises the present $600 personal deduction to $700 in 1970 and $800 in 1971. The House version provides a cut in income tax rates beginning in 1971.

Nixon contends a tax cut in 1970 would hurt his fight against inflation and would take too much out of the Treasury. The Senate's 15 per cent increase in Social Security benefits and a provision raising the minimum payment from $55 a month per individual to $100 both exceed the President's suggested total 10 per cent increase in benefits.

Another major difference, but one on which the administration has not taken a do-or-die stand, is the oil and gas depletion allowance. The House bill reduces the percentage of gross income an oil company may write off before taxes from 27½ to 20 per cent. The Senate bill drops it to 23 per cent.

Conferees privately predicted rejection by the conference committee of the following Senate amendments: —To give parents a $325 tax credit on college expenses, estimated to cost $1.8 billion.

—To give persons over 65 full deduction of medical expenses, estimated to cost $225 million.

—To exempt the first $20,000 of investments from repeal of the 7 per cent investment tax credit, estimated to cost $720 million.

—To establish the $100 minimum monthly individual Social Security benefit, estimated to cost $2 billion.

—To drop retirement age under Social Security for men from 62 to 60, estimated to cost $600 million the first year.

Agnew Says Tinkering on Taxes Jeopardizes the Inflation Fight

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said today that the Nixon administration's efforts to curb inflation have been jeopardized by "irresponsible tinkering" with the tax reform bill in the Senate.

In a speech prepared for the opening session of the winter conference of the Republican Governors Association, the vice president said the bill passed Thursday by the Senate "has turned tax reform into a Rubik's cube game to entertain and attract reluctant voters to fading politicians."

Praising the programs of President Nixon at home and abroad, Agnew said efforts to curb inflation are beginning to have results, noting that the consumer price index rose at an annual rate of 6.4 per cent in the first half of 1969 but at 5.3 per cent since June.

"Yet our policies face a critical threat—not from labor, not

"The plain truth is that one year's arduous efforts are jeopardized by irresponsible tinkering in the Senate of the United States."

He praised the work of Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee but said it "has been unbalanced by certain careless men in the Senate—worried about their futures, they have to stand for election in 1970—to carry political advantage for themselves."

"Their amendments are attention-getting gimmicks which ignore the painstaking work of the Mills' committee and the exhaustive efforts of the administration to achieve tax reform in the time of inflation," he added.

But Agnew said, "I believe their grandstanding is going to backfire" and, in the latest of a series of attacks on Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., sponsor of the amendment to increase the personal exemption from $600 to $800, he added that "they are about to gore their own oxen."

While Agnew made no specific reference to Democrats in the portion of his speech on the tax bill, he referred to several amendments, including Gore's and Social Security increases, that were sponsored by Democratic senators. And he repeatedly contrasted action by Nixon to those of Congress, which is controlled by Democrats.

In characteristically blunt language, Agnew gave what sounded like a Nixon administration version of the Republican platform for the state and congressional elections in 1970.

He predicted those elections would give the GOP control of the Senate "and quite possibly shake the complacency of House Democrats."

He also visualized a "population explosion" in all regions of the country by Republican governors, who already are in power in 30 of the 50 states and are taking over in two more next month.

Philippine Troops Pick Up And Leave Vietnam War

SAIGON (UPI)—The Philippines' 1,350-man commitment to the Vietnam War packed up and left for home today, the first Allied military contingent to withdraw completely.

From a ceremony at their Tay Ninh base camp 58 miles northwest of Saigon, the Filipinos flew to Saigon and boarded ships for the trip home after three years and three months in the war zone.

Manila decided to pull out the group — noncombatant engineers, pacification workers and farmers—as an economy move after Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., alleged that base camp, U.S. troops Thursday and early today pounced on North Vietnamese gunners firing on American helicopters.

A total of 2,200 Filipino troops arrived in Vietnam in September 1966. Some were withdrawn earlier. Ten Filipino soldiers were killed and 34 wounded during their tour.

A press release said the Filipinos had built 116 miles of roads, 11 bridges, 14 schools, 10 demonstration farms, two model communities and 54 refugee centers in Tay Ninh Province on the Cambodian border.

Up the border from their base camp, U.S. troops Thursday and early today pounced on North Vietnamese gunners firing on American helicopters.

The GIs suffered no losses in the fighting in Phuoc Long Province 85 miles northeast of Saigon headquarters said. Viet Cong commandos attacked a 120-foot concrete bridge on Saigon's main highway link with the southern tip of Vietnam during the night and destroyed the span.

The explosions Thursday night left the span 85 miles southwest of Saigon a sham, disrupting traffic from the delta.

Military spokesmen said three government troops assigned to guard the bridge were wounded and one civilian was killed in the attack. The bridge is eight miles south of Can Tho, the delta's biggest city.

The commandos escaped without apparent losses. Engineers this morning began repairing the structure, expected to take several weeks. Highway 4 is the main traffic artery between Saigon and the delta.

NEW AIR SERVICE — Among panel members at Thursday's luncheon meeting at Holiday Inn to announce the institution of Metro Air Service between Kingston and Kennedy Airport were: (L) Frank Bloom, pilot for Mountain Airways, Kingston; Alex C. Metro Air Service Revealed Kingston Link With the World

By LYNN MULVANEY linking Kingston to Kennedy, the largest airport in the world, Air travel for Ulster County residents is being made easier with the institution of a new flight service between Kingston and the American Airlines Terminal at Kennedy Airport. Announcement of the new "Metro Service" which takes passengers and baggage from Kingston to point of destination anywhere in the world was made at a luncheon meeting Thursday at Holiday Inn. Business and community leaders from Kingston, Newburgh, Walden, Middletown and Montgomery attended as well as officials of American Airlines.

The new venture, which employs the use of a new "Islander" plane, was hailed as "an exciting moment," by Kingsley Morse, president of Command Airways at Poughkeepsie who said "history is being made when you are accessible. Loeks suggested was a practical need for a terminal manager. Kennedy Airport, who addressed the group briefly and introduced others: R. C. Horner, city manager, American Airlines who described the operation; H. Allen and Ronald Bell, Metro Service managers; L. H. Larche, manager for passenger and freight sales, Albany County Airport; M.F. Bush, manager, passenger service, American Airlines, Kennedy Airport; D. H. Lobb, director of public relations, American Airlines, New York City office and T. J. Ross Jr., vice president, American Airlines Regional Office.

Among other questions from those attending was one concerning the possible use of the Stewart Air Force Base as a fourth jetport for New York City. Morse answered saying it would not meet the requirements for it is about one-fourth of the size needed and jets would have to be shoe-horned in.

Guests from American Airlines who were flown to Kingston in the new twin-engine

Saugerties Subdivision Review

SAUGERTIES the seriousness of the shortage of general practitioners in the township of 17,000 inhabitants. The recent death of Dr. Bertram W. Gifford has created an even greater crisis. He noted there were some possibilities of physicians settling in Saugerties and these should be explored. Cawein offered to serve on a committee to that end and said he would ask the Rev. William H. Baudendistel, also a Planning Board member to serve with him.

The Planning Board has data about the town which would be useful to a physician seeking to locate here. The Planning Board would also assist in securing adequate housing and office space for any applicants. The acting chairman also announced that the board had reviewed the Artist Lake Preserve development of Robert Likala, owner of the former Shag Bark property on Route 212 and on advice of the town's planning consultant approved the plan with certain reservations in regard to private roads in the project. The board agreed to recommend the reappointment of Frank Greimel to the board for a full term. Greimel's term expires Dec. 31. Several recommendations will also be made to the Town Board for a replacement for the one-year unexpired term of Cawein. The board is still seeking the services of a secretarial assistant handle correspondence

Kick Open Door—2 Drug Arrests

By WALTER S. CLARK

ELLENVILLE State Police BCI officers and village authorities combined forces Thursday afternoon and seized two men on charges involving dangerous drugs, after police kicked open a door at the residence of one of the pair. James P. Regan, 26, of 10 Warren Street, where the arrests were made, was accused of possessing a hypodermic needle, dangerous drugs and fireworks. He also was charged with grand larceny third degree involving the alleged theft and use of credit cards. Regan also was described as a parole violator. Police also booked Jerry M. Rodriguez, 22, of 4 Market Street, this village, who authorities found with Regan in the latter's home.

Both men were arraigned before Police Justice Ronald W. Elias. Their cases were adjourned until Tuesday night for hearings. Rodriguez, who was accused of loitering for the purpose of using narcotic drugs, was released on $500 bail. Regan was committed to the county jail without bail.

A detail of BCI officers from the Ellenville substation and Patrolmen Leonard Quick and Warren Hull had the Regan home under surveillance yesterday afternoon. They waited until Regan and Rodriguez entered the house and later police went inside but they found a door locked. The door was kicked open and the two men were taken into custody. Troopers said they found Regan preparing narcotic drugs for use. Police seized an instrument which contained liquid heroin, some capsules and a starter's pistol, along with credit cards that had allegedly been stolen. Parole officers took part in the arrests, authorities said. It said had been taken from the Ellenville Handle Works during on parole and previously had a burglary.

Bell to Host County Inspection

KINGSTON Eleven New York City and upstate Legislators will inspect educational, environmental, and housing conditions in Ulster County in the Mid-Hudson Valley Tuesday, Dec. 16.

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock) will be host. Other majority Assembly members making the visit are Fred G. Field, Albany County; Benjamin A. Gilman, Orange County; Vincent A. Riccio, Kings County; Raymond Skuse, Albany-Rensselaer Counties; and Ronald H. Tills, Erie County; and Stephen C. Hansen, New York County. Five minority Assemblymen also will be on hand.

Scheduled for inspection by the lawmakers are an Ulster County migrant farm, packing houses, bunk houses, and trailers; visits to seriously underdeveloped rural areas; and a tour of a Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES) facility in Kingston.

Also scheduled is a symposium on a new BOCES experimental educational program for the aid of educationally handicapped children.

Bell believes Ulster County's experimental program "may be on the road toward a tremendous remedial educational breakthrough."

"Working under a federally-funded program," Bell said, "Ulster County BOCES is developing a program of education by prescription for the so-called track four, slow learning, educationally handicapped child. Initial reports disclose such children may be suffering from one or more handicaps, such as neurological, physical, social cultural, environmental, or medical deficiencies."

"If a child's handicap can be diagnosed properly and a sound educational 'prescription' set up," Bell added, "the child can make great progress."

"I think this experimental program will be of great interest especially to city legislators," Bell said, "because I feel the only major difference between the children in this program living in an underdeveloped rural environment and those in an urban ghetto is geography."

"Last summer a group of upstate legislators visited New York City and inspected tough poverty areas. The city tour will narrate.

Beginning at 1:30 p. m. there will be a tour of the BOCES program in Kingston with Michael Aronica program director guiding the group. Returning to New Paltz, the group will hear Assemblyman Bell speak and attend a session titled "The School District Prescription." Bell, Dr. Roosa and the legislators will take part. Also visiting next week will be these Assembly minority members: Guy R. Brewer, Queens County; Stanley Fink, Kings County; Stephen S. Gotlieb and Franz S. Leicher, New York County; and Armando Montano, Bronx County. With Adirondack Trailways Bus Corp. providing the transportation, the day's events will begin at 9:45 at BOCES in New Paltz. From there the group will travel to Clintonville where they will visit Hurd's Farm packing house, bunk house and trailers. Harley Taylor, director of the Southern Ulster Migrant Assistance Committee will narrate and conduct an on-site inspection.

From there the group will travel to Highland where Donald Baines, supervising principal of Highland Central School, will narrate and make comments concerning roadside views and house environments. From there to Kingston for a lunch served by vocational students, Dr. Jack Roosa, district superintendent, BOCES logical findings will be discussed. Summary comments with questions and suggestions will follow with Thomas Hayden, superintendent of Ellenville to New Paltz, the group will hear Assemblyman Bell speak and attend a session titled "The School District Prescription." Bell, Dr. Roosa and the leg-

HRVC Acts on Three Projects

TARRYTOWN Construction of a 670-unit condominium apartment complex proposed for Clarkstown in Rockland County has been stayed by the Hudson River Valley Commission pending further review and a public hearing.

The commission's action delaying the start of the project for a total of up to 90 days, was taken after the state agency found that the development might have an unreasonable adverse effect on the scenic and natural resources of the Hudson River Valley.

The project, known as Mountainview East, would consist of 171 two-story buildings, including both garden apartment structures and town houses, on a site of 40.3 acres.

Would Straddle Ridge

The project would straddle the crest of a high ridge overlooking the Hudson River and the villages of Nyack and Upper Nyack.

The commission will hold a public hearing on the project at a time and place to be announced.

The commission found no unreasonable adverse effect in two other proposed projects. They are:

Orange County—Construction of two oil storage tanks by the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company at Danskammer Point in the Town of Newburgh. The commission noted that the tanks would be somewhat screened by the existing Danskammer generating plant, and would eliminate the need for coal piles. The changeover from coal to oil is expected to reduce air pollution in the area. Westchester County—A two-story brick structure for the Salvation Army on New Main Street in Yonkers. The building will include a chapel, a recreation room, kitchen and several classrooms. The building is made possible by a gift from the Surdna Foundation covering $200,000 of the total $500,000 building cost.

'Yes, Virginia' Bedded for Yule

NORTH CHATHAM, N.Y. UPI—Seventy-two years ago a newspaper editor reassured a year-old Virginia O'Hanlon with the famous words "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus."

This year, Virginia will spend Christmas in a hospital bed. Now 80-years-old Mrs. Virginia O'Hanlon Douglas, the ailing great-grandmother is in "fair" condition at Columbia Memorial Hospital in Hudson.

Her granddaughter Patricia Temple said today that Mrs. Douglas "is doing very well. 'It's nothing serious, just age.'"

Mrs. Douglas, a former New York City school principal, has lived with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Temple, in this Columbia County community for a number of years.

Virginia retained her faith in the spirit of Christmas through out the years.

"People at my age may have the heart of a child, but not always the physique," she said last year. Her Christmas wish was no longer that of a child's—she said she prayed for peace in Vietnam.

As a little girl, Virginia was upset by the doubts of her friends and wrote a letter to the New York Sun. She was answered by Assistant Editor Francis P. Church in an editorial that has become a part of Christmas tradition since its publication in 1897.

"I am 8 years old," she wrote, "Some of my friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says 'If you see it in the Sun it's so.' Please tell me the truth: is there a Santa Claus?"

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong," Church wrote. "They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge."

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Virginias. There would be no child-like faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished."

Church ended with this paragraph: "No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives and he lives forever. A thousand years from now Virginia, may ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

If the competition had Impala's high resale value maybe they'd be No.1.

Maybe.

The makers of Impala generously offer these tips to competitors to help improve their resale value.

They could try adding our side guard door beam structure, heavy steel rails inside the doors.

They could do something about the rocker panel problem, as we have done with flush-and-dry rocker panels, instead of being content to let rust accumulate.

They could put inner fenders in every model, just like Impala. Who knows? Come resale time their outer fenders might look almost as good as Impala's.

They could hush up the sounds of old age with something like Impala's long life exhaust system, aluminized at critical points for greater durability.

Impala's cargo-guard luggage compartment is a good bet, too. A steel bulkhead separates luggage from passenger compartment. Beats paper or plywood all hollow.

We suggest an acrylic lacquer finish, so then cars will keep their shine longer.

But if competition doesn't take these tips, you certainly should.

Buy an Impala.

It's such a rewarding car to get rid of.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

Goodell, Ministers Support Local Moratorium

KINGSTON United States Senator Charles E. Goodell and two prominent local ministers are lending strong support to the peace march planned in Kingston this Sunday as part of moratorium activities for December.

Concerned Citizens of Ulster County, sponsors of the march, and rally planned this weekend, released today the text of a telegram received from Sen. Goodell (R.N.Y.) in answer to an invitation extended to him by the group to speak at a rally in Forsyth Park following the march from Kingston High School to the park Sunday afternoon.

Goodell's wire follows: "You were most thoughtful to invite me to participate in your anti-war rally for Ulster County on Dec. 14. Unfortunately, I am not able to accept due to an unusually heavy schedule of Senate business. Most of the major votes of this session are scheduled for the coming week. I wish you the best of success with your rally and hope that it will bring a visible end to the war in Vietnam."

Quotes Council of Churches

The Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the Hurley Reformed Church, who will not be able to attend Sunday's events due to illness, gave voice to his feelings in this strongly worded statement: "I join with the National Council of Churches of Christ in calling upon all church members not to celebrate Christmas as usual this year, but rather to contribute to the peace movement and join demonstrations against the war in Vietnam."

The Rev. Harold S. Schade-wald, pastor of the Kingston Old Dutch Church, has also gone on record with a statement in support of the march and rally. Says Oudemool: "I join with the National Council of Churches of Christ in calling upon all church members not to celebrate Christmas as usual this year, but rather to contribute to the peace movement and join demonstrations against the war in Vietnam."

The Rev. Harold S. Schade-wald, pastor of the Kingston Old Dutch Church, has also gone on record with a statement in support of the march and rally. Says Oudemool: "I join with the National

Had I been well enough, I would have been with you Sunday, but I want you to know that I most deeply and sincerely share your horror of this war and ask—no demand that the war stop."

A spokesman for the Concerned Citizens group said all three statements will be read to the crowd attending the rally at Forsyth Park this Sunday afternoon.

The rally will follow a two-mile march from the local high school, beginning at 2 p.m. Service of Economic Opportunity. Among the speakers will be poet and date for Congress from this district will be Louis Crepet, teacher Peter Kane Dufault, strict in last year's election.

Yule Programs Set by Edson School Groups

KINGSTON The Edson School Band playing the musical philosophies of Carl Orff. The glee club program will be held on Dec. 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the J. W. Bailey Junior High School Auditorium. The glee club is under the direction of Robert J. Moore.

The Edson School Band program, under the direction of Joseph La Russo, will be held Dec. 17, 7:30 p.m. at the Edson School. Admission for both concerts is free and the public may attend.

Theater Party For Seniors

KINGSTON A gala holiday theater party, free of charge, for all senior citizens of the area will be held on Friday afternoon, Dec. 19, at the Community Theater, according to an announcement by Robert Battaglia, city manager of the Walter Reade Theater.

Battaglia said the event is being sponsored jointly with the Senior Citizens Advisory Council. The film "The Christmas Tree" starring William Holden and Virn Lili will be shown. The movie will start promptly at 2 p.m. and all senior citizens of the area are invited. Mrs. Margaret Thomas, of the Community Theater, will be in charge for making the arrangements.

Battaglia added that the Walter Reade group was very happy for the opportunity to recognize the senior citizens of the area. In addition to sponsoring the party at no cost to the senior citizen, Battaglia said that Golden Age cards, which permits admission at reduced rates for all senior citizens at the Community and Mayfair Theaters, are available.

The Senior Citizens Advisory Council consists of representatives from Ulster County Social Services, Social Security Administration, New York State Employment Service, Kingston Housing Authority, Kingston Recreation Commission, Ulster County Health Department, Ulster County Bar Association and Salvation Army.

Any senior citizen requiring assistance of any sort may receive help, without charge, by calling 338-0933.

Bard Slates Yule Program

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON The annual Bard College Christmas Service will be held in the Chapel of the Holy Innocents at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Area residents are welcome, and all who attend are invited by President and Mrs. Reamer Kline to join the college community at an open house at their home on the campus immediately after the service.

The evening's program will include organ selections played by senior Donald Lee of Fort Edwards, a group of carols and several chorales, including Bach's Vom Himmel Hoch, performed by the college chorus; and solos by sopranos Janet Wheeler, assistant professor of music at Bard and Mary Luzzi, a senior from Rhinebeck.

Miss Wheeler will sing Haydn's Cantilena pro Adventu Ein Magd, ein Dienerin and Mrs. Luzzi will offer Scarlatti's Cantata Pastorale per la nativita di nostro Signore Gesu Cristo.

Shopping Spree In Red Hook

RED HOOK Twenty boys from the Overbrook home, armed with $5 each, will begin a Christmas shopping spree in this village Saturday, under the sponsorship of the Red Hook Jaycees.

The boys, ranging in age of from 8 to 13, will each be accompanied by a member of the Jaycees as they shop for presents for their parents or prospective foster parents, a Jaycee spokesman said.

A Christmas party will be held for the boys at the Overbrook home Sunday.

Greece Quits Council Before Ouster Vote

PARIS (UPI)—Greece withdrew from the 18-nation Council of Europe today before the group had a chance to vote on whether it should be ousted for suppressing democratic principles.

An official of the council said Greek Foreign Minister Panayotis Pipinelis announced that his nation was resigning under Article 7 of the council's statute.

The article allows any member to resign by "formally notifying the secretary general of its intention to do so."

Just before Pipinelis' announcement, the Athens government hinted it would pull out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) if the council voted to oust Greece.

Ministers of the council, an advisory body created in 1949 to promote unity and safeguard the "European heritage," debated a proposal put forth by the Scandinavian nations to expel Greece.

The main charge was that the military regime that took over in April 1967, had violated the statutes of the council by suppressing democratic freedoms. It was the first international test for the government.

Greek Foreign Minister Panayotis Pipinelis headed the Athens efforts to prevent expulsion. Greek sources said he planned to detail a timetable for a return to full democracy in his country by the end of 1970.

Expulsion would mean little to Greece materially, but it would be a severe diplomatic blow to the junta of generals that run it.

Greek officials feared a successful move to expel Greece from the council would be followed by similar efforts to oust it from the Common Market and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Greece is an associate member of the Common Market.

Chicago Trial—Theatrical Day

CHICAGO (UPI)—It was one of the best "theater" days so far in the trial of the "Chicago Seven," and David Dellinger was enjoying it with his fellow defendants.

Folk singer Phil Ochs almost got to play his guitar for the jury and, later, poet Allen Ginsberg was going to appear.

Ochs came to the witness stand with his guitar and testified Yippie leaders Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin came to Chicago in August, 1968, "to theatrically sort of spook" the Democratic National Convention.

He said they wanted to show that "fantasies in the street" were a means of "dealing with what seemed to be an absurd world." He also said Hoffman and Rubin wanted to avoid violence in their "festival of life."

Ready to Play and Sing
Defense attorney William H. Kunstler said Ochs was ready to play his guitar and sing a song he sang at the convention. Judge Julius J. Hoffman forbade singing, but permitted Ochs to recite the words of "I Ain't Marchin' Anymore."

Then Ginsberg was called to testify, his long hair and beard flowing as he made his way to the witness stand. Defense attorney Leonard I. Weinglass carried a harmonium under his arm and asked the poet—whose most famous poem is "Howl"—to identify it.

"Oh, an instrument, too?" Judge Hoffman said. Ginsberg took it and squeezed out a few bars, to the prosecution's objection which the judge upheld.

Ginsberg chanted his "Mantra of Preservation," which he used to try to bring good feeling back to Chicago during the violent convention activities.

"Hare hare
"Hare rama
"Rama rama
"Rama Krishna."

Doesn't Understand
Judge Hoffman cut off Ginsberg's deep, resonant voice and courtroom laughter.

"I just don't understand the whole thing. The language of the U.S. District Court is English. I don't know what language that is we have just heard."

"It's Sanskrit," Ginsberg replied.

"When you offer testimony in a foreign language, you must have an interpreter," the judge said, ruling Ginsberg could not interpret for himself.

After his testimony—in which he spoke of his writings and studies in Oriental religions, and of "the planetary crisis"—Ginsberg was excused. He turned to the judge as he left the witness stand.

"Hare Krishna," he said.

In My Lai Massacre

Most of 24 Will Be Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army sources say they expect charges to be filed against most of the 24 soldiers and former soldiers under investigation in the alleged massacre of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.

They estimated the probe will not be completed for about four months because of the widespread hunt for evidence. Interrogations resulted in more leads that have to be followed up, they explained.

But one the basis of what has been developed so far, the sources said there probably will be charges filed against a majority of nine soldiers and 15 former soldiers, all one-time members of Company C, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Brigade.

First Lt. William L. Calley Jr., a platoon commander in Company C, is awaiting court-martial at Ft. Benning, Ga., on charges of premeditated murder of at least 109 Vietnamese women and children.

A decision is imminent on whether to court-martial one of Calley's squad leaders in Vietnam, S. Sgt. David Mitchell, who has been accused of assault with intent to kill 30 Vietnamese noncombatants. Mitchell says he is innocent.

The Army has refused to identify the 24 other men whose actions the day of the My Lai incident nearly 21 months ago are under scrutiny.

There is a strong prospect that, if the prediction of the Army sources stands up, trials may be held simultaneously or in sequence in different parts of the country.

Army and Justice Department authorities have not yet finally made up their minds on how to proceed with any charges against former soldiers.

Pentagon sources said Justice Department authorities are leaning toward the commission, or tribunal, approach.

A Supreme Court decision 14 years ago invalidated a section of the Military Justice Code under which the Air Force at that time attempted to prosecute a former airman.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, DECEMBER 12, 1969

S. A. Christmas Bells

Few of the activities of this season are more in keeping with the truest meaning of the holiday than is the work of the men and women of the Salvation Army. Soldiers of this dedicated Army man their posts in the business sections of the city, ringing their bells seeking alms to make a merrier Christmas for the needy.

Sometimes, in the hustle and bustle of holiday preparations, we let the real importance of Christmas become obscured. As we hurry along the streets, intent on the external trappings of the season, the bells of the Salvation Army remind us of its deeper meaning. At the Christmas season, this band of dedicated, self-sacrificing citizens makes it easy for us to recall that the spirit of helping the less fortunate is the true spirit of Christmas. This organization for over a hundred years has labored to be a friend to the friendless—be they the very old, the very young, the jobless, the prisoner, the alcoholic.

Those who are familiar with the local branch of the Salvation Army know of the great benefits it brings to the people it serves throughout the year. During the coming holiday season, the men and women redouble their efforts to seek out those who would otherwise have a bleak Christmas.

Your contribution dropped in one of the Army's Christmas kettles, or better still, a check mailed to the Salvation Army Christmas Program, 94 North Street, Kingston will help in this great work of mercy and love.

Automobile Safety

There have been so many cars recalled by auto manufacturers in recent years for various defects that it was not surprising that the Senate passed a stiff auto safety bill in which it requires auto makers to repair free of charge any defects related to safety. Similarly, the Senate bill requires tire makers to notify purchasers, if a safety-related tire defect is discovered or if a tire fails to comply with certain safety standards.

These requirements were attached to a House bill which had simply extended the Highway Safety Act of 1966 for three years and authorized expenditures of $96 million. The Senate bill would extend the act for two years and authorize $23 million expenditures in fiscal 1970 and $40 million in fiscal 1971. Both far exceeded the Administration request for a two-year extension and a $58 million authorization.

However, the important thing is that Congress and the Executive both saw the need for extending the safety act. Furthermore, the House should join in the Senate provisions for auto makers and tire makers, to assume some of the responsibility for safety-related defects. Auto safety is a more and more vital necessity with today's high-powered cars and increased motor traffic the country over.

No matter how the Department of Transportation emphasizes that tests reports are only one factor in determining compliance with the auto-safety law, the fact that failures run 25 per cent for independent laboratory tests of the best known American tires must be disconcerting. Certainly something should be done about this.

"Can't Hear a Thing with All That Racket!"

David Lawrence Says President's Exact Words Should Be Widely Read

WASHINGTON — President Nixon handled himself well at his televised news conference on Monday night as he answered questions extemporaneously on a number of national and international problems. But how many people in America really heard him, and how many will be able to read in the newspapers just what was said?

The impression is that almost everybody had a chance to listen to the program. But it was presented at 9 o'clock eastern time and 8 o'clock central time, when millions of persons had other engagements for the evening, and at 7 o'clock Mountain time and 6 o'clock Pacific time, when a great many people were eating their dinners, and others were away at work. While it is estimated that 65 million watched the President on TV, at least 60 million adults did not do so.

Besides, lots of people are eye-minded rather than ear-minded, and like to read the next day's verbatim version so that they may examine carefully just what was said. But some newspapers were unable to carry in all editions even a news article on it. Nothing could be given out in advance, as no section of the talk was prepared ahead of time. Since the President began speaking in Washington at 9 o'clock and finished at 9:30, it wasn't feasible for a considerable number of morning newspapers in some parts of the country to get the story about the news conference set up in type for their early editions.

Thus, the New York Times, which had a 96-page paper on Tuesday, and the Chicago Tribune, with 56 pages, and the Wall Street Journal, with 40 pages, distributed their early editions by air to many cities in different parts of the country for delivery the same day, but none of the three contained a single line about the President's meeting with the press.

One way, of course, to meet these various production problems would be to conduct the news conference in the afternoon and have it pre-recorded for later presentation. The transcript would be available early for morning papers. The broadcast to the public could take place in the evening of the same day and could be put on the air at the convenience of each of the networks in accordance with the exigencies of shifting programs in different parts of the country.

Certainly when the President of the United States speaks out on national issues, it is important that the widest dissemination be given to the questions and answers. Communication between the people and their government is essential to a better understanding of public policies. What the President says in the status of many current problems with which he and the members of Congress are struggling nowadays is helpful in the formation of public opinion, and this, in turn, influences law-making.

When the President declared, for instance, that he would veto any tax bill which increases the personal exemption to 800 dollars or raises the Social Security payments by 15 per cent, he pointed out that if he signed the pending tax-reform bill, he would be reducing taxes for some of the American people and raising the prices for all the American people. He added that he "will not do that."

The President also made it clear that he thinks the American people collectively are paying a sufficient percentage of their income in taxes — federal, state and local. He feels that this amount is high enough and that, if the tax share went "substantially" higher, it could mean a "state-controlled and oriented economy."

On the subject of the Vietnam War, the President admitted that the chances of a negotiated settlement now are "not good." He indicated, however, that he expects the South Vietnamese to be able to take over the burden of fighting the war, and he believes that, as it becomes apparent that the Vietnamization Program continues to work, "the pressures for a settlement will greatly increase."

There were several other questions on which the President made comments, and a summary by itself is not adequate. For the exact words he uttered reveal the trend of his policies. It is too bad the entire transcript could not be widely read, because so many persons did not have a chance to listen either to radio or television or to read even excerpts in some of the morning papers distributed in their areas.

Nuclear Realism Is Goal Of President at Helsinki

By BRUCE BISSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — There is a strong bond between President Nixon's July 25 call to Guam for a lowered U.S. profile around the world, and the things our "arms limitation" team at Helsinki seems ready to negotiate with the Soviet Union on nuclear weapons.

At Guam the President ventured one kind of new realism, rooted in awareness in many parts of the earth, underscored by widening popular distaste for distant military involvements like Vietnam — which a majority once could believe were linked to our and the free world's survival.

At Helsinki Nixon is moving toward another sort of realism. The overriding, operative fact — though heretofore no leader in either the United States or Russia has dared to stress it — is that we two great nuclear powers are in a condition of practical parity.

We may in truth still have, as some of our experts believe, a nuclear edge over Moscow. But it matters no more than it has over us, a modest margin over us.

The decisive point is that each nation has sufficient nuclear strength to crush the other even if it is hit by a surprise first strike.

special safety could be attained.

As one high U.S. official puts it:

"At Helsinki we are going to the very heart of the image on which free world security has been built. Whatever is done there (assuming an agreement) is going to shake that image."

In the American political realm, the turn toward nuclear realism began earlier this year when the President, who had campaigned in 1968 on a promise of nuclear superiority, substituted the word "sufficiency" — meaning enough nuclear might to deter the Soviet Union from striking.

That was a significant signal. Conveyed down through the military bureaucracy, it led to a very searching examination by key planners as to how this country might limit or trim some of its nuclear arms development, without losing that "sufficiency."

When top officials assert that they, better than their counterparts in prior administrations, have labored uniquely to offer flexible alternatives at Helsinki, one may suspect self-serving utterance.

But this reporter's checks within the military establishment indicate that the Nixon administration's quest for a flexible posture for the Helsinki talks is indeed without precedent.

The President's advisers began with the intent not to set out a rigid formula to be tested first against our own military disputants and then against a probably similar rigidity from Moscow.

We are not going to talk in Helsinki about unrealistic "on-site" inspections to prove the Soviets are not cheating on some future accord. The Nixon view: argument — that alone would waste two years. We are working on other ways of verifying Soviet performance.

There is an even tougher matter at stake. Though we and the Russians enjoy practical nuclear parity, our highly sophisticated nuclear weapons systems are distinctively individual.

When the hard process of mutual limitation is undertaken, how do you equate nuclear systems that are not really alike in important particulars and do not, in fact, do the same jobs?

Even before a date for the SALT talks was set, we tried to give the Kremlin an earnest picture of our intent on this score. We told Moscow we were grappling hard with the complexities of equating diverse systems, looking for varied answers that would be taken as "acceptably safe" by both our military men and our people. We expressed hope Russia would come to the table similarly prepared.

The initial signs are judged promising. At least in the vital nuclear field, Soviet leaders seem to see the costly folly of overreaching — as Richard Nixon, from Guam on, suggests he sees it across the whole economic, diplomatic and military spectrum of great power rivalry.

Jack Anderson Says

Nixon Also Tells Congress He Will Veto Inflationary Acts

WASHINGTON — President Nixon wasn't bluffing when he threatened to veto "inflationary" legislation, such as the 15 per cent increase in Social Security benefits and the $200 boost in personal income tax exemptions.

He made this clear to Republican congressional leaders the other day at a White House political powwow. In language intended for GOP ears only, he warned: "I'm going to be awfully tough."

He appealed to his leaders on Capitol Hill to stand up for fiscal responsibility.

"I'd like you in Congress," he said, "to take as much heat as you can."

The President brought in his chief economic adviser, Paul McCracken, to lecture the congressional leaders about inflation.

"We are at an extremely critical stage in trying to get the economy on an orderly path," declared McCracken. "There is tangible evidence that the economy is slowly beginning to respond."

He ticked off some of the favorable signs but cautioned: "The key issue in whether we can continue this progress is unquestionably the budget outlook."

As he explained it, "Every dollar released into the economy produced about two dollars impact on the economy. A $5 billion deficit means $10 billion inflation. This would add excessive pressure, expressing itself in terms of higher price level."

He reported that business leaders had "deep skepticism about the ability of government to hold down inflationary pressures."

"But, if we can establish credibility in fiscal responsibility," he promised, "some of these problems will begin to clear up within the next 12 months."

The President, turning to new Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, asked: "Do you agree, Arthur?"

"I agree," said Burns. "This is a critical time. I urge you to veto legislation which overspends and to impound funds."

"I won't need any urging on budget cuts," the President replied. "We've got to be a responsible administration. We Republicans want to be responsible. We must keep at it."

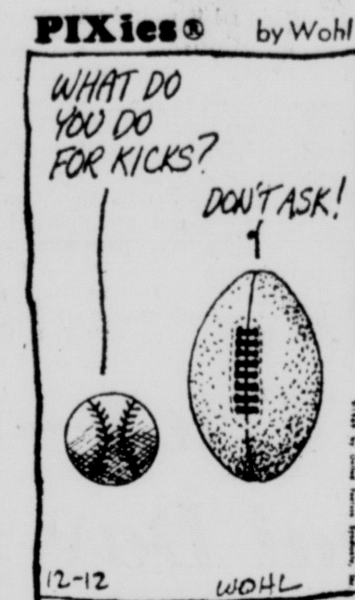

Christmas has a Yuletide surprise for banks with Christmas Club accounts Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D.N.Y., has ordered an investigation into how they've been short-changing their Christmas customers all these years.

He made spot checks of ten banking institutions in the Washington area, preliminary to a nationwide study of Christmas Club accounts. This confidential survey showed only two banks paid interest, while five actually penalized savers if they didn't make their full 48 or 50 weeks of payments.

Rosenthal can't understand why banks charging 10 per cent interest shouldn't show the Christmas clubbers just a little more holiday generosity. The Federal Reserve Board for figures on how many Americans have Christmas Club accounts.

Then he will either hold hearings or introduce legislation to force federally chartered banks to pay interest to the Christmas clubbers.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Market Will Rise, but When?

On the day of the first big 1929 stock market break (September 4) the shares of the 30 stocks in the Dow Jones Industrial Average were selling at 20 times earnings.

By October 24, serving as the acting President of the New York Stock Exchange, Richard Whitney, calmly stepped to the United States Steel trading post and bid $205 for 10,000 shares — $5 above the market — about where Steel, allowing for splits, is selling today.

The 1929 Dow reached a peak of 381. It hit a bottom of 41 in 1932, the deepest it dropped into the black pit. It took 25 years for stocks to come back to the level of 1929. World War II came and went. We had abandoned gold convertibility. We had devalued the dollar. But not until 1954 did stock averages finally recover. At last the Dow topped 400. And, astoundingly enough, even today the Dow is only twice as high as it was 40 years ago.

Well, recently, when the average broke 800 after rallying sharply from the level five times, countless millions among the nation's 25 million stock owners, looking at intrinsic values and prospective earnings, asked: "Are stocks cheap?"

Old Wall Street hands know that the question is as idle as asking how many angels can sit on the head of a pin. And once more it seems helpful to repeat that prices are made on the basis of supply and demand, not values or earnings.

Brokerage accounts are highly liquid — loaded with credit balances. Margin (part payment) buying is at an all-time minimum. One of Wall Street's largest firms tells me that less than 150 of its 7,000 main office accounts are margin accounts. The Federal Reserve Board, in turn, estimates that an over-all $4 billion in stand-by cash is waiting to come into the market. And ultimately prices do respond to earnings, yields and prospects. But the market mirrors the hopes and fears of worldwide millions. If the worldwide millions want cash or bonds or anything more than stocks, or if uncertainty grips them, the law of supply and demand overrides everything. And vice versa.

Moreover, there's no such thing as "intrinsic" value in the stock market. Values and earnings change, of course, in conditions change. And, in addition there is practically no connection between the way stock prices explode into great ups-and-downs and actual earnings during the same time periods. The proof of this is as plain as a giant blue whale.

The Dow momentarily hit 1,001.11 (still unequalled) during February 9, 1966. Then the market staged one of history's most horrendous drops: 250 points in only six months. By September 26, 1967, it had climbed 175 points within nine months. By March 22, 1968, it fell 134 points within six months. By December 2, 1968, it climbed 177 points within eight months and exceeded the 1967 high. By July 29 this year 732 New York Stock Exchange stocks made new lows for 1969 or longer — a drop of 216 points within eight months — and closed at 801.96.

Yet, as often, actual corporate earnings showed no gyrations like that whatever — not by a million miles. The earnings records and the prices throughout the period have about as much in common as a puff of wind and a tornado or a roller coaster and a slope. Any market is built on a great many illusions, and this is one of them.

Accordingly, there is a basic relationship between time and investing. Buying a stock at $20 and selling it at $40 yields the same gain after six months as if they were held for years on end. The equity itself, rather than the duration it is held, constitutes the essence of risk in the market.

This badly blurs the definition of investor versus speculator. Holding something for years does not define a conservative investor, nor do purchases and sales within reasonable times mean a speculator.

Today's downhill market will go up again when it is ready to go up and Old Wall Street hands know that no living man can tell when that will be — or precisely why.

Aaron Hodges, 45, of Arlington, Tex., is a civilian electronics technician working for the Department of Defense. He supervises repairs on Cobra helicopters, the 250 m.p.h., jet-powered chopper fighters.

H. E. Luman is manager of the II Corps area Post Exchange. Thus, he handles considerable amounts of foodstuffs which are damaged or otherwise rendered unsalable during shipment.

No bands plays for these soldiers. No ceremonies honor their work. But they contribute.

As Paul Mooney, the man who takes care of the dead, puts it: "I'm a rifleman but they put me in graves registration. I guess non-heroes are important, too."

Viet's Nonheroes Also Serve

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

CAMP ENARI, South Vietnam (NEA) — By any standard, Paul Mooney has one of the most unrewarding jobs in Vietnam.

He takes care of the dead. The 22-year-old soldier from Gibson City, Ill., is with the graves registration unit of the 4th Infantry Division. It's a gory job.

Mooney's responsibility is to prepare the casualties for embalming. He identifies them, strips them, cleans them as best he can — then places their remains in green, plastic pouches for shipment to the military morgue.

Mooney, however, is not alone in his thankless anonymity. Combat is crowded with others like him.

Each, by the fortunes of assignment, nailed to lackluster positions.

Other examples: Joe Alexander, 22, of Adamsville, Tenn., is a mine-sweeper. It's tedious work — two miles and hour — and dangerous. If Alexander misses an area, even a tiny area — well, as he says, "My sweeper is supposed to go beep-beep when it detects something. But you always get the uneasy feeling that some day it'll go boom-boom instead."

Black Panthers—Revolutionaries on the Ropes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Self-exiled Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver is seeking to arrange his return to the United States where his armed revolutionary party—reeling under police pressure—is hurting for leadership.

Twenty-four hours after two Panthers were slain in a shoot-out with Chicago police, sources said Cleaver contacted U.S. diplomatic officials in Algiers and asked for a passport to return to America where he is wanted on a fugitive warrant.

Cleaver didn't get the passport, the sources added, but in later discussions was told he could get a certificate of identity that would allow him to travel to the United States.

As Cleaver was making the inquiries in Algiers, signs were mounting in America that the Panthers are revolutionaries on the ropes.

On Monday, a police raid on Panther headquarters in Los Angeles resulted in a four-hour gun battle that left three police men and three Panthers wounded. A score of Panthers were arrested.

Two well known Panther leaders—Huey P. Newton and Bobby Seale—already were in jail.

Stokely Carmichael quit the party last summer. Other party leaders are dead. Dave Hilliard, Panther chief of staff, faces trial on a charge of threatening the life of President Nixon.

If Cleaver returns to California, he faces imprisonment as a parole violator and for jumping bail on charges of assault with intent to kill and assault with a deadly weapon. But the deepening Panther police crisis presumably has increased pressure on him to give up his self-proclaimed exile.

Black leaders say the police raids have brought an upsurge in pro Panther sympathy, yet the Panthers are without the widely known leaders needed to take full advantage of the situation.

The Chicago and Los Angeles raids were the latest in a series of police actions that the Panthers say have resulted in 28 Panther deaths—a figure the Panthers failed to document and which Justice Department officials say is exaggerated.

But the frequency and intensity of the clashes are seen by some as having an impact on America's ghettos more profound than anything Panthers could muster with their Marxist ideology and weapon wielding ways.

Panther lawyer Charles Garry of San Francisco says the incidents add up to a campaign of "genocide on the Black Panther party."

"Poppycock," replied a Justice Department spokesman to charges made by Garry and others that the Nixon administration is the concert master for an elaborate and planned police crackdown on the Panthers.

But there is little question that an intense hostility exists between police and Panthers.

One high federal official put it this way: "It seems every time cops and Panthers meet they shoot each other. Fear plays a part. It's been some years since I considered myself a cop, but I know if I were back on the street, I wouldn't want to have to stop a black man, or especially two of them. The friction is so intense, with Panthers you keep a hand on a gun."

Alfred Head, Student Talk

ALFRED, N.Y. (AP) — Alfred university President Leland Miles meets today with Richard Garcia, a student whose suspension set off demonstrations that included a takeover of the school's administration building.

The Student Conduct Board last Friday ordered Garcia, a 20-year-old junior from Brooklyn, suspended for a year because he had been arrested on a marijuana-possession charge in this western New York village.

About 250 students, claiming the Garcia should not have been punished by the university unless convicted by a civil court, occupied the administration building, Carnegie Hall, Wednesday night.

The protesters remained there until Thursday afternoon, when they and other students met with Miles for three hours in the university's gymnasium.

An estimated 700 young people attended the session. Alfred, a private, coeducational university, has about 2,000 students.

At the meeting, Miles replied to a list of 20 student demands. He referred many of them to faculty committees, saying they were academic matters.

He said four of the demands, including the abolition of curfews and student control of housing regulations, had already been met.

He rejected demands dealing with disciplinary procedures.

"There are rules. There are procedures. We must uphold this framework of law," he said.

He said he would not punish any of the students who took part in the occupation.

"I told the students they would be my guests in the building until 2 p.m. They pledged to leave at two and they honored that pledge," Miles told a reporter.

"If they had decided not to leave, we would have served them with a court order, which we had ready," he added. The document had been obtained earlier Thursday from State Supreme Court in Buffalo.

The students, in discussing whether to leave the administration building for the meeting, talked of the then-unconfirmed reports that the administration had the injunction.

"Don't go to jail, it's a waste of time," one said. "We have gotten what we want in this building. We no longer need the building. This building has become a symbol," another agreed.

Charles Wallis, Yates County chief questioned the seriousness of the report that Stratton may jump parties. He said he does not take the report seriously.

Wallis said Goodell is good for the Republican party, and added, Goodell "speaks the language of upstate New York."

Chenango County Chairman William Gordon gave Goodell a strong endorsement, saying he was "absolutely against" a race by Stratton and adding, "I'm for Goodell."

Paul J. Yesawich Jr., Cortland County chairman, said he follows the leadership of Gov. Rockefeller. He said he "would listen very carefully to the governor" before backing anyone for state office.

Yesawich said the view of the people toward Vietnam may change to the point where Goodell would "be a true blessing" to the Republicans.

The Cult Leader Is Formally Charged

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles Manson, a tiny, bearded man with shoulder length hair, was formally charged in the seven Tate-LaBianca murders Thursday as authorities investigated links between the "Manson Family" and other slayings.

Manson, 35, the accused master of a knife-wielding hippie cult, delayed until Dec.

22 a plea to the seven counts of murder and one of conspiracy in the August killings.

Spectators in the jammed courtroom stood on chairs for a better view as the 110-pound Manson was led in by three officers. He spoke out in a clear and resonant voice when asked if he understood his Constitutional rights.

Manson, clad in a filthy fringed buckskin outfit and moccasins, told Superior Court Judge William B. Keene that he did not have the money to hire a lawyer and the court appointed a county public defender to represent him, at least temporarily.

Keene named Deputy Public Defender Paul Fitzgerald to handle his case. Prominent attorneys are known to have offered their services free and it was expected Manson would select one or more of them.

Manson appeared calm, almost bored, during the 15 minute arraignment. As he was led out he smiled broadly at a dark-haired girl photographer seated in the front row of newsmen sitting in the space ordinarily occupied by a jury

Stratton—Little GOP Help

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Rep. Samuel S. Stratton of Amsterdam can look forward to little if any organizational support from Republicans in his own district if he becomes a Republican and runs for the U.S. Senate, according to county leaders.

Party leaders from four of Stratton's eight counties declared Thursday they oppose Stratton, although only one indicated wholehearted support for U.S. Sen. Charles E. Goodell.

The political situation is one of two men slightly out of tune with their parties—Goodell, a "super dove" in the hawkish

Republican party, and Stratton, something of a "hawk" in the more dovish Democratic party.

Goodell is expected to have a hawkish primary opponent, although Stratton is not widely expected to be his rival.

John Bouck, Cayuga County GOP chairman, said there would be no way of stopping some Republican committee-men from working for Stratton if he ran as a Republican for the Senate. Bouck said the man is simply too popular to maintain complete unity.

He said, "at this time, Sam Stratton has not indicated to me that he will make the change," and run as a Republican.

Stratton has not stated that he would run as a Republican or that he would run for the Senate. He has maintained the position of being interested in running state-wide and has said he has been urged to consider becoming a Republican.

Stratton's history as a Democrat is a long one. He has held public office for all of the past 20 years as a Democrat. He started as Schenectady city councilman, was mayor for three years and has been in Congress since his election in 1958.

None of the four Republican chairmen said Goodell is presently strong in their counties, although all the counties are traditionally Republican.

Bouck said Goodell is weak in Cayuga County and that the rank and file Republicans "don't agree with Goodell's legislation or his attitude toward President Nixon."

Bouck said the Republicans "would welcome" Stratton, but said the welcome would be as a party member, not necessarily as a candidate.

Charles Wallis, Yates County chief questioned the seriousness of the report that Stratton may jump parties. He said he does not take the report seriously.

Wallis said Goodell is good for the Republican party, and added, Goodell "speaks the language of upstate New York."

Chenango County Chairman William Gordon gave Goodell a strong endorsement, saying he was "absolutely against" a race by Stratton and adding, "I'm for Goodell."

Paul J. Yesawich Jr., Cortland County chairman, said he follows the leadership of Gov. Rockefeller. He said he "would listen very carefully to the governor" before backing anyone for state office.

Yesawich said the view of the people toward Vietnam may change to the point where Goodell would "be a true blessing" to the Republicans.

Klein Warns City Residents To Procure Dog Licenses

KINGSTON commissioner of agriculture and markets has instituted city courts of Kingston a large before suit commences or at Aaron E. Klein has advised proceedings to require all number of suits to comply with any time up to the hearing of city residents to procure owners of unlicensed dogs be the directive of the com- the cases in city court the suits may be discontinued.

Klein said, however, that if the license is procured before suit commences only the license fee will be payable. (The fee is $2.25 per year for male dogs and spayed females and $5.25 for a female who is not spayed).

Klein said there would be an additional fee of $2 per dog if the license was procured after suit was instituted and if procured after the hearing, a surcharge of $15 per dog could be assessed and a judgement entered therefor.

Klein urged all owners of dogs who have failed to procure licenses for their animals to do so at the earliest possible date in order to avoid penalties.

Some 500 summonses are now in the process of being served, according to officials at city hall.

Klein said that the state "Consequently," Klein said, licenses would furnish them-

Golden Named Consultant for Kingston JCC

KINGSTON The Jewish Community Center, Kingston, is being served by Irwin Golden, who has been appointed to the position of community consultant on the staff of the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB) Sanford Solender, JWB executive vice president, announced.

Golden, who was personnel consultant in JWB Personnel Services since October 1968, succeeds Herman L. Sainer, who is now consultant on camping to the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York.

In his new responsibilities, which he assumed on Dec. 8, Golden is working with Harold Arian, consultant to JWB's Metropolitan New York Region, in providing services to Centers and Ys in that area.

Golden came to JWB in 1968 after four years as field work instructor, lecturer in social group work and assistant to the dean of the Columbia University School of Social Work. From 1960 to 1964, he was assistant director and executive director of the Mt. Vernon, N.Y. YWHA. He is a former executive director of Camp Ella Fohs of the East Tremont, Bronx, YW-YWHA, program director of the Bronx YW-YWHA and supervisor of teen, pre-teen and older adult activities at the Jewish Community Center of Essex County, N. J.

A resident of Mount Vernon, Golden received his BA from New York University in 1949 and his master's degree in social work from the University of Pennsylvania School of Social Work in 1952.

State Senate Slates 'Mini-Session' Monday

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Senate is going to conduct an off season "mini-session" next Monday, during which its committees will set what leaders hope will be a happy precedent.

If all goes according to plan, at least some of the 30 standing committees will report out a group of bills for consideration by the Senate at the opening session of the legislature's 1970 meeting.

Both houses of the legislature are to convene Jan. 7, at which time the major business of the day will be to receive Gov. Rockefeller and listen to his annual "State of the State" message.

In the past, the custom was to recess for a few days. The committees then would begin evaluating the bills introduced by rank-and-file members.

A week or so would elapse before any legislation turned up on the calendars for floor debate. At the end of the annual meeting, all left over bills were killed and the committees would go out of business until the next year.

Two years ago, however, the Senate began an experiment of keeping a few committees operating year round. At the end of the 1969 session, it extended the life of all of its committees, and the Assembly did the same. They have been meeting from time to time.

As an added measure, the Senate also decided to keep all leftover bills alive for an additional year. It seemed more economical than tossing them all out, only to find sponsors introducing them in precisely the same form the next year.

Thus the Senate committees find they have a total of 4,122 bills to consider when they meet next week—plus 88 new measures filed since Nov. 15 for action by the 1970 session.

Most of the leftovers face a dubious fate, since they were held in committee during the 1969 session. Some are what the lawmakers call "old chestnuts"—introduced year after year without success.

But some of the old—and new—measures may make their way out of committee Monday. If so, they will appear on the Jan. 7 calendar. Under Senate procedure, they will be listed under "General Orders"—which means they can be brought to a vote the very next working day, if the senators choose. This would get the Senate's 1970 session off to an early start, and the prospect pleases Majority Leader Earl W. Zryd, who has smarted under an annual criticism that the legislature is slow to get moving. The Assembly has no hold over rule on bills, but Speaker Perry B. Duryea Jr. is watching the Senate experiment with interest. Duryea has called all Assembly committees into session at the Capitol next Wednesday. They will spend their time discussing recommendations for 1970 action and examining the 278 new bills that have been "pre-filed" in that house. Duryea says he expects his committees will be able to get under way almost as quickly as the Senate, using the new measures as a base for action.

Mrs. Kerr Comments On Center

BUFFALO — "We feel that too many disturbed children have been cared for in totally inappropriate facilities for too long," Mrs. Harriet Kerr of New Paltz, chairman of the legislative committee of the State Association for Mental Health, said recently, calling attention to Wednesday's "grand non-opening" of a state psychiatric hospital.

More than 1,000 parents, state and local officials were invited to meet here to protest the state's failure to open the $3.6-million children's hospital at the nearby West Seneca State School.

Mrs. Kerr referred to the hospital at a recent hearing before the Joint Legislative Committee on Mental Health and Physical Handicap in New York City.

Saying "the services for the mentally ill cannot wait," Mrs. Kerr told the committee unit "was to show citizen concern that this much-needed facility should be staffed and opened at the earliest possible time." The hospital had been ready for opening last summer, but state funds to operate it and four other similar new units did not become available.

"We insist that the children's psychiatric hospitals that have recently been completed must now be open with adequate staff at the earliest possible date," the New Paltz resident said. The Associated Press reported Tuesday that the State Mental Hygiene Department in Albany says the West Seneca hospital will now be opened April 1.

Mrs. Kerr, in a statement to The Freeman, said "we who are concerned with the problems in mental health are happy that the Recodification Study Bill reinstates the 50 per cent reimbursement formula for community health services," but, she said, "we do not feel this is enough."

Mrs. Kerr said she told the committee that a 75 per cent state reimbursement "across the board" is needed for county and city mental health boards. "This," she said, "is a step in the direction which all of us would like to see achieved." Last summer Dr. John Cumming, deputy commissioner of the state mental hygiene agency, blamed the reduction in state funds on legislative cuts and the five per cent across the board reduction of Gov. Rockefeller that was ordered for all state agencies.

Probe by Reds Indicates Masaryk's Death Accidental

PRAGUE (AP) — A new Communist investigation suggests that the death of anti-Communist Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk in March 1948 was due to an accidental fall from a window sill where he was sitting in a yoga position to combat insomnia.

While the report cast doubt on the Communist regime's verdict 21 years ago that Masaryk committed suicide, it also ruled out that he was murdered, as anti-Communists here and abroad have contended.

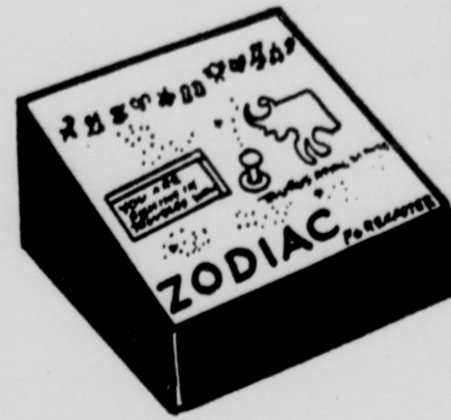

Dr. Karel Pesta, a department head in the attorney general's office, said in a report Thursday night, that because murder was excluded, the case is considered closed and no final determination will be made on the cause of death.

Masaryk, 62-year-old son of the founder and first president of the Czechoslovak Republic, Thomas Masaryk, died in a fall from his second-story apartment two weeks after the Communists came to power.

Nixon's Poverty Fight Draws Bitter Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's plea for support of his legislative proposals to fight poverty has drawn bitter criticism from many delegates to the White House conference on hunger.

Much of the fire came from participants demanding a $5,500 yearly guaranteed minimum income for the poor and the shipment of emergency food supplies to underfed citizens.

There was outspoken disappointment over President Nixon's opening speech to the 3,000 delegates to the three-day Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health.

Nixon appealed for support of his three welfare bills before Congress, which he said "should virtually eliminate the problem of poverty as a cause of malnutrition."

"That's not true," said Mrs. Peter Edelman, director of the Washington, D.C., Research Project, and a member of a conference panel considering minimum income.

'Lousy' Speech

She described the President's speech as "lousy, it said nothing new."

A caucus of Spanish speaking delegates—called La Raza—issued a statement expressing "profound disappointment that the President" did not declare a national emergency on hunger, order immediate supplies of fresh food for the hungry and malnourished. The caucus also declared the President's family assistance program totally inadequate.

Nixon did get some qualified support from the Rev. Robert J. McEwen, chairman of the Task Force on Voluntary Action by Consumers. He expressed concern that "instant money" proponents would completely overshadow long range approaches to upgrade the nutrient quality of food.

McEwen, chairman of the department of economics at Boston College, said he thought Nixon's "total message was good" but expressed disappointment that "he didn't make a dramatic gesture now."

The Food Delivery and Distribution Panel voted overwhelmingly endorsing a guaranteed minimum income of $5,500 for a family of four after Stanley Gershow, the panel chairman, said such a program would cost $70 to $80 billion and would put 120 million Americans on government subsidy.

Dr. Jean Mayer, Nixon's consultant on nutrition, agreed to make space at the conference available for an informal discussion of income maintenance programs, but did not make it part of the official program.

One participant, James Primo, commenting on the President's speech, said of the promises "a lot of us poor people will be dead by then."

Asks Support

The President asked support for these bills:

- A new family assistance plan, placing a $1,600 floor supplemented with food stamps up to about $2,350.

- Expansion of the food stamp program.

- Creation of a commission on population growth and the American future.

The 20 panel sessions continue through Thursday. Later the consensus of the conference will be worked into recommendations for the President, hopefully, Mayer said, before Christmas.

Army Soul-Searching On First My Lai Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three-star general scrutinizing the original Army investigation of the reported American troop massacre of civilians of My Lai, Vietnam, is a cigar chomping, boxer-nosed officer known among his colleagues as a "hard charger."

Lt. Gen. William R. Peers didn't particularly relish getting the sensitive task of orchestrating what amounts to an Army soul searching.

"But his plumb was not shattered noticeably," said one officer who was around when the 55-year-old general received word he had volunteered for the job. "He growled just a little bit."

From all accounts, the graying general sees the investigation, one of the most touchy he has ever handled, as a major challenge in his 31-year Army career.

Peers has been charged in Pentagon language to evaluate the "nature and scope" of the initial, low-echelon investigation conducted in March 1968 just after the hamlet was raided.

That on-the-spot investigation from all indications consisted primarily of questioning soldiers assigned to Capt. Ernest Medina's company, the unit involved in the alleged massacre.

The My Lai report, forwarded by the 11th Infantry Brigade to the Americal Division, concluded that no massacre had occurred and no soldier needed disciplining.

Whether the report was thorough enough and why it was not forwarded beyond the Americal Division are key questions confronting Peers.

Pentagon sources say that after a week of hearing testimony from various witnesses, Peers has decided the Army system for reporting atrocities works—when it is used.

"I believe he thinks one or possibly two guys blew it," one officer said, meaning they failed to submit the My Lai report to higher channels.

Officers and enlisted men alike are enjoined by the military command in Saigon's directive to report any atrocity or incident thought to be a war crime to their superiors.

A varied military career with considerable experiences in intelligence and espionage work may help the general in his role as a fact-finder.

He was born in Stuart, Iowa, June 14, 1914, but grew up in Southern California, attending UCLA.

With the end of World War II, Peers organized and sent U.S. teams to several Japanese prisoner of war camps in China and Korea and subsequently led a Chinese command unit in the occupation of Mankang.

Returning to the states, Peers held intelligence assignments, winding up in 1949 in charge of all training in the Central Intelligence Agency.

In 1964, after several years in France and Germany, Peers became assistant to the chief of staff for special warfare activities.

Three years later he went to Vietnam as commanding general of an Infantry division, later to become commanding general of Field Force I.

Peers ended a 27-month stint in Vietnam when he was named chief of the Army's Office of Reserve Components in the Pentagon last March, a post he still holds.

UCCC Has Courses For Intercession

STONE RIDGE, Ulster County Community College will offer 13 credit courses at an Intercession running from Jan. 6 through Jan. 29, Ronald A. Koster, the Director of Continuing Education, announced today.

Registration will be Monday, Jan. 5, from 10 a.m. to noon at the college's Stone Ridge campus.

The 13 courses being offered are Principles of Accounting I, Personnel Administration, Freshman Composition I, The Short Story, Elementary Spanish I, Fundamentals of Speech, College Mathematics, Technical Mathematics I, History of Civilization I, History of Civilization

II, Principles of Sociology, Introduction to Psychology and Developmental Psychology.

The Intercession will enable interested students to accelerate their college program or to lighten the number of courses they will have to take in a regular semester. It also will provide enrichment in areas not possible for students in prescribed curriculums during regular sessions.

Intercession classes also offer a student a convenient means by which to make up a course previously taken but not successfully completed.

Further information about courses being offered in the Intercession may be obtained by calling the Office of Continuing Education at the college.

Laborites Deny Rumors That Wilson Will Resign

LONDON (UPI)—Laborites There was no official confirmation today that Prime Minister Harold Wilson would resign. Many Laborites would have thought any such intention was unlikely since he has told rebellious left-wing recent parliamentary by-elections he will resign and the swings showed strong national well lose their seats and parliamentary salaries. It was known that Wilson has used the general election threat and the angry trade unions proposals for wage curbs.

Indian Corps Commences Sale Of Yule Trees

KINGSTON The sixth annual Christmas tree sale of the Troop 12 BSA Indians and the Kingston Indian Drum and Bugle Corps began today at three locations in Kingston and one in Port Ewen. A selection of Scotch Pine in regular and large sizes and for the first time a selection of small table model Scotch Pines are to be on sale. Douglas Fir nursery trees are also to go on sale here for the first time. More than 1,000 trees will be on sale at the four locations: the residence of Bert Ellis, 65 Lucas Avenue; Gil Sampson, 228 Greenkill Avenue; George Ellsworth, 31 Ravine Street, and in Port Ewen at Clearwater's, next to Smith's Store on Broadway.

The sale is the primary fund-raising project of the Indians, he said, and the proceeds are used to defray the cost of uniforms, instruments and other equipment. Professional instruction and travel are also aided by the sale, the spokesman said.

Youths Hurt In Car Mishap

MORGAN HILL Two area youths were injured early this morning when the car in which they were riding went out of control after skidding on a patch of ice on Route 28-A at Morgan Hill Road, according to state police reports. The two, Ivan Rion, 16, of Morgan Hill, who suffered multiple cuts and Joseph Immediato, 17, of RD 3, Box 345, Kingston, who received a broken jaw and numerous cuts, were taken to Benedictine Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance. Police said the car skidded into a large tree and was wrecked. One of the two youths was ejected from the vehicle, troopers said.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks were firm at the opening today on the New York Stock Exchange. Turnover was moderate.

Shortly after the opening the UPI marketwide indicator was up 0.10 per cent on 425 issues. Advances outnumbered declines, 164 to 140. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials gained a fraction.

150 Attend CP Christmas Fete

KINGSTON Music, entertainment, refreshments, and gifts all helped to make a merry afternoon for 150 children from the Children's Rehabilitation Center Tuesday. Santa Claus distributed the gifts to the children at the 17th annual CP Christmas party at the First Baptist Church.

Contributors to the party were Mrs. Harold Seidel, Clarence Hanson, Elks, Junior League of Kingston, Kingston Kiwanis, Hurley Boy Scouts and Santa Claus courtesy of Lewis Kirchner. General Planning Committee from CRC included the Mmes. Walter Perret, chairman, Sherwood Lasher, DeVall Dunbar, Wilson Tinnie, John Roberts, William Granitto and Miss Mary Staples.

Saugerties Man Gets Probation

KINGSTON Joseph E. Weber Jr., 24, of R.D. 4, Box 57, Saugerties, appeared Thursday before Special City Judge George A. Beck and was placed on probation for six months after pleading guilty to disorderly conduct. He was arrested on Nov. 15 by city police.

Three Charged With Thefts At Barker's

NEW PALTZ Three New Palitz residents were arrested Thursday night by State Police and a security detective at Barker's Department Store on Route 299, in connection with the alleged theft of merchandise. Booked on petit larceny charges were Betty Ann Greco, 30, and Armando Salantri, 31. Charged with criminal possession of stolen property third degree was Salantri's 28-year-old wife, Mary Ann.

The three were arraigned before Town Justice Rexford Schneider by Trooper Brian O'Connor and a store detective, who made the arrests. The trio pleaded guilty and sentencing was deferred until tonight at 8. Judge Schneider committed the accused trio to the county jail.

According to authorities, Betty Greco was employed at the store as a checkout cashier. Salantri and his wife, it was reported, had in their possession merchandise valued at $174 and as they went through the checkout manned by the other defendant, they allegedly paid only $6 for the articles in their possession.

Bids Offered For Properties At City Auction

KINGSTON Bids were received on six city-owned properties at an auction held in the Common Council chambers Wednesday morning. More than 50 properties had been offered. The Gov. Clinton Market put in a bid for a property on 47 St. James Street on which $227 in back taxes was owed. John Naccarato, a former city alderman, submitted a bid on a property located at 306-314 Clifton Avenue with back taxes of $471. Santos Amato and Mrs. Rose Hogan bid on two properties, one at 51 German Street and the other at 61 German Street. The taxes owed on them was $174 and $140, respectively. Bruce Brady bid on two properties, one at 186-194 Wilbur Avenue and one at 196-204 Wilbur Avenue. Back taxes owed on the latter amounted to $185. The amount on the former was $156.

Three Injured In Greene Crash

TOWN OF CAIRO Three persons were treated at Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill on Thursday for injuries suffered in a one-car accident that occurred on Route 32 in this township. Leeds State Police reported the car involved was driven by Edith Dobos, 39, of Freehold. She sustained facial lacerations and possible rib fractures. Passengers were Stephen Dobos, who received back injuries, and Edward Bowes, who was treated for a fracture of the right wrist. Troopers said the investigation is continuing to obtain additional information about the mishap that occurred at 5 p.m.

Wishwell Home Offers Blending

Semi-contemporary planning, always aimed at full utility without sacrifice of charm and efficiency finds expression in today's design called the "Wishwell." There are many features worthy of particular mention, but it is the overall blending that gains the most merit. Modern living, with its wealth of activities, demands that a home, to be complete, must provide space for all the necessary functions, plus things that lift up above a plain every-day existence. At the same time, it also demands that this be accomplished within the financial capacity of the average home owner.

There is no doubt that the "Wishwell" meets these requirements. Particularly impressive is the fact that such a small area could contain as much and be so efficient. From the family-type kitchen it is only a few steps to all points of the dwelling. The well designed bedrooms offer an exceptional amount of wall space for flexible furniture placement. The exterior is a tribute to the designers and their ability to create a small but very attractive house with nothing but straight, simple lines.

All materials used in the building of this handsome dwelling are stock lumber-yard items such as the vertical siding around the kitchen-dining area and the cedar shingles used throughout the remainder of the exterior walls.

Areas of the "Wishwell" are 1,030 square feet of living space and 250 more for the car-port. The working plans show sections for construction with wood, brick, concrete block or

Plastic Containers Are Useful

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Although the planting season is a long way off, now's a good time to remind you about saving them for making "jug-sized greenhouses." Everything comes in plastic these days, and you can use these discarded containers in many ways in the garden. Some gardeners cut off the top and bottom of a gallon-sized plastic jug and use them to protect peppers, tomatoes,

Care of Philodendrons: If you want the foliage of your plants to have a healthy glow, follow these tips: (1) Give the plant a bath in a tub once every 2 or 3 weeks. (2) For glossy effect, don't use olive oil or vaseline. Use a half and half mixture of milk and water, applied with soft cloth, or use a commercial leaf shine sold by florists. holidays? Keep in mind that this item needs more light than its cousin, the African Violet. Grow it in a bright window, without direct sun. If your plant gets spindly it means insufficient light, and if the leaves curl under the edges, it also indicates a lack of light, or poor drainage. Drooping of buds, or failure to form buds, is due to dry air. Try enclosing a polyethylene bag over the plant to prevent bud drop, at least until the flowers have a chance to form. It's a good idea to turn your plant around every few days so it will grow symmetrical. If you don't, it'll grow lopsided. The so-called "slipper" gloxinia has the same care as the regular "florist's" type which is correctly known as Sinningia.

LEAF SHINERS TOO THICK people will rub against them, like warm rooms. Give them a cool, bright window, 60 to 70 degs., and away from radiators or direct sunlight. Too much sun will cause the leaves to turn pale. Feed the plant some liquid plant food once every 3 or 4 weeks.

OR TOO OFTEN. We've seen plants burned by it. Glycerine on cloth gives a good shine. (3) Cut off yellowed, or spotted leaves and burn. (4) Keep plants out of cold drafts and away from passageways where newer home, the branch circuits may be of 12-gauge wire, fused for 20 amps and capable of handling a 2,400-watt load. Multiply the number of bulbs on the strings plugged into any one circuit by the number of watts each burns. You will find this marked on the bulb or on the carton. The small bulb that burns in series (one burns out, they all go out) burns five watts. The multiple-burning bulb used on indoor or outdoor strings burns six and one-half watts. Larger bulbs used in strings burn 10 watts and out-door floods are generally 150 watts.

Get Your Yule Lights In Top Working Order

Last year's Christmas lights are a mass of wires and a few broken bulbs. A little work, a little patience and you will have them ready to use for another holiday season.

Untangling and replacing the broken bulbs are not enough. Inspect the light strings carefully for cracked or broken plugs and sockets, frayed or broken insulation. If a string of lights looks all right, plug it in and make sure every light works. Shake the string to see if there is any flickering. There may be a short in the wiring that you cannot detect any other way.

If you plan any outdoor lighting, make certain that you have lights that are designed for outdoor use. Do not use ordinary extension cords. You should have heavy-duty waterproof extension cords. Wherever you must use a connection, wrap with rubber or electrician's tape to keep out moisture.

Outdoor outlets are best if you have them. If you do not have them, then use outdoor light fixtures such as porch lights or door lights. Remove the bulb and replace with a screw-in adapter socket.

If you must run the cord from inside, put it through a window. Cut a narrow board the width of the window and put a hole in it just big enough for the wire. Then close the window down tight on the board.

If you are fastening light strings against the house with staples, use insulated staples. If you are using hooks, tape the wire to the hook so that it hangs below the hook rather than rubbing against it.

Flood lights should be of the outdoor variety mounted in weatherproof fixtures. If set on the ground the fixture should have a spike that holds it firmly in the ground to keep it from tipping.

Do not overload circuits. The average branch circuit of 14-gauge wire is fused for 15 amperes and will handle a load of 1,800 watts. If you have a have to pay for gas or oil to compare with that price? Or if you are paying 17 cents per gallon for fuel oil, what would be the equivalent price for gas or electricity?

A quick-check fuel facts card is available from the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, the information center of the hydronic (modern hot water) heating industry. According to the Council, this card will help you determine at glance how the fuel you use compares with others.

Violent Pacific Storm Hits Northwest Coast

By United Press International

A violent storm over the Pacific sent 100-mile-an-hour winds, rain, high tides and deep snow against Oregon, Washington and Northern California again today.

A crewman from the French freighter Michigan fell overboard about 35 miles northwest of Newport, Ore., Thursday but other crewmen had to abandon rescue attempts because of high seas even though they could see the man's body 20 yards from the ship.

Two persons were missing in a light plane on a flight from Eugene, Ore. Search planes could not take to the air Thursday because of the storm and hoped to begin a search today.

The storm that lashed the Eastern Coast abated today although snow flurries and rain continued in the Northeast. Minor flooding was reported in hurricane harbor barrier gates parts of New England and were closed at New Bedford, Mass., and Stamford, Conn. Putnam, Conn., had over two inches of rain Thursday and Boston had more than an inch of rain.

Winds gusts of nearly 80 miles an hour buffeted Eastern Massachusetts. Gusts of nearly 110 miles an hour lashed Cape Blanco, Ore., where more than five inches of rain had fallen by early today.

Snow flurries persisted around the Great Lakes and Appalachians. Heavy snowfall continued in the mountains of the Northwest and pushed inland as far as Nevada and Idaho. Heavy snow and travelers' warnings were posted for much of the Northwest.

National temperature extremes Thursday ranged from 11 degrees below zero at Alamosa, Colo., to 7° at Islamorada, Fla.

Hard to Believe Shaggy Dog Tale Is His Excuse

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—When Joseph Matracia got out of his compact car to close the garage door Thursday, a 200-pound St. Bernard dog bounded out of the shrubbery and took Matracia's place at the driver's seat.

From that point it was a war of wits. Matracia stepped close to the car and dog barked. The man offered the dog a treat—from a distance via a broom handle—but it was no deal.

Mrs. Matracia came out. Two deputies arrived. They radioed for more manpower to control a "nasty" situation.

After an hour of unsuccessful attempts to dislodge the giant, officers used a disabling chemical.

It worked. The dog—a stranger in the neighborhood—was removed from the car. Matracia drove to work, trying to think of an explanation his boss would believe for being late.

Marriage Vows Are Exchanged

Miss Carol Ann Combs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Combs of Alda Drive, St. Remy, became the bride of Michael Joseph Bauer, son of Mrs. Teresa Miller, 85 West Union Street, Kingston, and the late Christian Bauer, Sunday, Nov. 30 at Holy Name of Jesus Church in Wilbur.

The Rev. John G. Russell officiated at the double ring ceremony. Wayne Cusher, organist, accompanied Nadine Woinoski who sang traditional wedding selections. Vases of white gladioli decorated the altar and white bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of peau de soie, fashioned with a wedding ring neckline and long sleeves. The gown featured banding of Venice lace and terminated in a chapel length train. A stylized headpiece held her silk illusion veil and she carried a colonial nosegay of white carnations and pompons.

Miss Shirley Clark of River Road, Port Ewen, was maid of honor in an empire style gown fashioned with copper velvet bodice and beige moire skirt. The skirt was trimmed with bow detail at the waistline and she wore a matching bow in her hair. She carried a colonial nosegay of yellow and copper pompons.

MRS. MICHAEL J. BAUER

Attendants were Miss Beth Combs, sister of the bride, St.

Remy; and Mrs. Mari Cassell of Jarrold Street, Kingston. Their gowns were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant's in gold over gold and moss green over moss, respectively. Miss Combs carried a colonial nosegay of yellow pompons and Mrs. Cassell carried a colonial nosegay of copper pompons.

John Coutant of 103 Stephan Street, Kingston, served as best man. Ushers were Henry Miller, brother of the bridegroom, West Union Street; and William Tomaseski, 17 Hone Street, both of Kingston.

A reception for 150 guests was held at Guido's Restaurant.

For her wedding trip to Washington, D.C., the bride selected a lavender knit dress with black accessories and a corsage of white baby orchids.

The bride, a graduate of Kingston High School, studied advanced hairstyling at Robert Fiance Hair Design Institute, and is employed as a hairstylist by Britts Beauty Salon.

Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School, is employed by Pepco of Port Ewen.

Mr. and Mrs. Bauer will reside at Tall Oaks Trailer Park, RD 1, Kingston.

Tiny Tips

Have yourself a merry little Christmas with bows and ornaments with a holiday flair. Ribbons in velvet, satin and soft wool yarn are great holiday accents. Match or contrast your Christmas outfits with hair ornaments—barrettes, clips and such, in silver, gold and bright enamel.

Chocolate drink is made from skimmed or partially skimmed milk; chocolate milk is made from whole milk. Either can be served cold or hot, but if you heat, don't permit the beverages to boil.

The year 1969 will go down as the year of the scarf—10 feet long, at least. Wear yours nonchalantly trailing, or knot two together for good measure. Shape the scarf into a turban, a stocking cap, a muff or purse.

Despite Increased Prices

Area Egg Producers Optimistic

Area producers see ample supply soon.

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

KINGSTON — Area egg producers are optimistic about the egg situation which has caused many shops to raise an eyebrow when they see the price gradually approaching $1 per dozen.

Most producers agree that the price seems to be holding steady and the market is stabilized despite the reports that some large-scale dealers are importing eggs from Spain. These same producers say the high price of eggs today makes it profitable to import the foreign product even with the cost of air shipment added to the price.

It was reported in the market place this week that 13 million dozen were brought in from Spain by air and more are expected to come as long as the price holds. Extra large grade A's are bringing $1 a dozen in some metropolitan areas. The same grade in Ulster County areas is about 95 cents and lower which reflects the lower cost of transportation from farm to market here.

One third of the chicken population in the state is reportedly situated in the Hudson Valley in what is called the Egg Basket Area, and includes Sullivan and Orange Counties.

A survey of area producers indicates there are many contributory factors for the increased price. Inflation is cited, everything else is going up, why not eggs?

It has been pointed out that eggs are still the best buy in protein foods. By comparison, top grade chopped beef in re-a 10,000 bird operation. He has cent weeks has been selling for about 95 cents per pound. A dozen eggs, depending on grade and size weighs from 1½ to 2 per cent. Tsitsera as others in pounds at the same 95 cents.

Thus the price is reasonable drying up now but will turn and definitely a good buy be about, possibly in six months, cause of the nutrients in eggs in Then the producer can look for comparison to other protein ward to over supply and less foods.

Other factors entering into the price rise include the higher rate by Robert P. Sax in the price for feed, the high morality rate with many diseases Kiskatom, agrees about conditions revealed by other producers. He has 17,000 layers and produces 11,000 eggs per day.

Saxe noted at present he is meeting the demand and has held his wholesale price. He looks for a change for the better after the holidays with a larger supply and good demand.

The largest producers in the Egg Basket Area are in what is known as the tri-county region embracing Ellenville in Ulster County and other Sullivan and Orange County communities. Much of this supply feeds the New York-New Jersey marketing area.

Dr. Clement I. Angstrom, director of the State Regional Veterinary Laboratory in Kingston discounts the disease factor. It is contributory, but it is the combination of all factors which are the cause of the price increase, he said. Angstrom, who specializes in the field of poultry pathology, said in his personal opinion disease in laying hens is insignificant in the lag of production.

Some of the producers cited the Mareks and Leukosis diseases are big factors and mainly responsible for the high mortality rate.

He noted that most hens begin to produce from 5 to 5½ months of age, but losses are predominately in the 3 to 8 months age brackets.

Special

The price of chicks is high, about 36 to 44 cents each and pullets are even higher.

Milton Tsitsera of the Three Brothers Egg Farm in Ulster Park says "we are all hurt, birds are not performing as they should, the weather in the south, hurricanes and continued cold is hurting production."

Tsitsera said three years ago small eggs were going for eight cents per dozen. By comparison, extra large eggs today cost as much as eight cents each in some areas. The low price at that time put many of the producers out of business. Production methods are better, despite the tight supply situation. Many years ago it took 18 months for a hen to produce the quantity of eggs it now produces in 12 months.

Three Brothers has a fairly large operation in this area. Tsitsera said they produce about 125 cases per week with top grade chopped beef in re-a 10,000 bird operation. He has cent weeks has been selling for about 95 cents per pound. A dozen eggs, depending on grade and size weighs from 1½ to 2 per cent. Tsitsera as others in pounds at the same 95 cents.

Thus the price is reasonable drying up now but will turn and definitely a good buy be about, possibly in six months, cause of the nutrients in eggs in Then the producer can look for comparison to other protein ward to over supply and less foods.

Other factors entering into the price rise include the higher rate by Robert P. Sax in the price for feed, the high mor-

Postmaster Gives Tips To Insure Yule Delivery

By SHANE CROSBY

KINGSTON — "A return address might not seem very important," says Kingston Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk, but more than $8-million in mail was lost last year because return addresses were not used.

Newkirk said more than 32-million pieces of mail ended up in dead letter branches of the postal system in 1968 "because the mailing address couldn't be read and there was no return address."

In a discussion of how to make sure Christmas letters and packages arrive on time for the holiday, Newkirk called the return address on first class Christmas card envelopes the most important item next to mailing early.

He said "people might as well get their full six cents value on the cards they send." A return address, he added, "insures them that if the letter can not be delivered, it will be returned."

The postmaster's suggestion for cards this Christmas: "Seal the envelope, put a six cent stamp on it, add ZIP code to the address, and put a return address on the envelope."

Although Postmaster Newkirk noted that the public is responding to the mail early campaign waged by the post office and news media, he issues this reminder to card senders: "Don't take chances on disappointing someone you love. Send your gift parcels and cards early enough to insure their delivery before Christmas, not after."

He added "On the day after Christmas a post office building can be the most depressing place in the world — if it still contains a mountain of messages of love and cheer which didn't make it because they were mailed too late."

Such disappointments may be avoided, he said, if Christmas mailers will follow the early mailing schedule.

Parcels going to local and nearby areas should be mailed not later than Dec. 13, he said. Greeting cards going to distant states should be mailed not later than Dec. 10, and cards going to local and nearby areas should be in the mail by Dec. 15.

On parcels, the postmaster said, ZIP code is "a must." Persons using the ZIP code save postal employees a lot of time. All the postal clerk has to do

Solon Cites 300,000 Troop Alert As Precaution If China Entered

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A former U.S. senator and member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he and his colleagues were once told the U.S. once alerted 300,000 troops as a precaution in case China entered the Vietnam war.

Former Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., defeated last November in his bid for re-election, said in a telephone interview that former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara briefed the 12-man committee late in 1966 at a time of U.S. Military buildup in Vietnam.

"He told us 'We have an ugly reality here,'" Morse said, "and we'd better face up to it."

Morse quoted McNamara as saying "we don't think China will enter this war, but if she does the ugly reality of it is we can't defeat China by bombing, conventional or nuclear."

Morse said the members of the committee "blanched" at McNamara's remarks.

He added that the committee was told the U.S. could bomb Chinese cities and military installations but that "she (China) would move her troops and we'll have to meet them on the ground."

He said McNamara gave no indication of where the alerted troops were located at the time, but he presumed they were mostly in the Pacific with some in Europe.

Earlier, at a press conference at Plattsburgh, N.Y. State College, where he is conducting a 3-day lecture series, Morse said it was his prediction that if an outbreak had occurred in China, the U.S. would have been compelled to bring in 3 million men within 36 months.

"We're not going to get 3 million men to go into any unjustified war in China," Morse declared.

"But don't worry about those young protesters," he asserted, "99 per cent of them would rally if the flag were in danger. It's not in danger in Vietnam and it wouldn't be in China," he said.

Morse told newsmen he was in favor of complete withdrawal of all American troops from Vietnam under the supervision of an international tribunal.

NO MARRIAGE PLANS — Tricia Nixon's escort these days is Edward Finch Cox of New York, a freshman law student at Harvard. Close friends say the two have no definite marriage plans, although Tricia's parents are reported opposed to a marriage between them, in hopes someone more eligible will come along. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Niagara Official's Removal Threatened

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Governor Rockefeller, in a strongly worded statement expressing "extreme displeasure," today gave Niagara County Election Commissioner Michael W. Kiesel a last chance to properly perform his public duties.

"Because of the awesomeness and finality of the removal power," Rockefeller warned in a letter to Kiesel, "It has generally been invoked only in the most demanding circumstances."

"I, too, am reluctant to use this power and would much prefer those involved mend their ways or that the desired conduct be obtained through the normal processes," Rockefeller said.

The governor based his statement on the findings in a detailed report prepared by Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo, who looked into conditions after receiving complaints about the Niagara County board of elections in Lockport.

Lomenzo, in a Nov. 18, 1969 letter to the governor detailed 10 findings based on an inquiry that started July 14, 1969 in response to complaints and newspaper articles.

Lomenzo's findings included Kiesel's refusal to answer questions, refusal to provide the county attorney with copies of contested primary petitions, inadequate supervision of the board personnel, exceeding his scope of power, undue delay of decisions with respect to petitions for the 1969 primary election and failure to transmit a required statement of canvass with the secretary of state within the 25 day limit.

The governor said he would follow the recommendations of Lomenzo that removal power be withheld at this time. He added that he hoped Kiesel would begin to provide the people of the county with the quality of public service to which they are entitled.

"The citizens of Niagara County, however, should not be asked to tolerate any further misfeasance from you in your capacity as commissioner of elections," Rockefeller warned.

"Thus, I must emphasize that I will have no alternative but to institute proceedings for your removal from office, if you do not immediately and from now on properly perform your public duties," he said.

Rockefeller said the secretary of state would make future examinations into the operations of the Niagara County Board of Elections.

In a milder tone, the governor wrote the other election commissioner, Perry Chambers, about the "highly critical" report on the operations of the board and said it "presented a disturbing picture."

Rockefeller noted that the report by Lomenzo indicated that Chambers had been cooperative and for the "most part was not critical of your activities."

However, the governor said, the secretary of state had reported that "on a number of occasions you had either acquiesced in or had been unable to prevent arbitrary actions by Commissioner Kiesel."

The governor's letters to the two commissioners were dated Dec. 9.

Armed Robbers Become A Greater Menace

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's spiraling crime rate leveled off during the first nine months of 1969, but armed robbers became a much greater menace on city streets, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover reported today.

Hoover said the overall crime rate rose 11 per cent during the period—eight per cent under than the increase during the corresponding months a year ago.

But, in releasing the quarterly uniform crime reports, he called attention to the 15 per cent jump in robberies, particularly an 18 per cent hike in armed holdups.

Hoover said street robbery made up more than half of all robbery offenses and increased 18 per cent, while residential holdups climbed 22 per cent during the period.

Among the various types of robberies, he noted, only bank holdups showed a decline—4 per cent less than during the first nine months of 1968.

The report came shortly after Hoover released a statement in which he predicted "the soaring crime rate in the 1970s can be contained."

"They are all tremendously interested in what's going on in the United States, particularly in ordinary things such as salaries, prices," said Xeniz Ordovsky, 26, of Los Angeles, one of 21 young Americans or Craig's staff. All of them speak fluent Russian. They man the exhibit, demonstrate U.S. teaching techniques and answer the visitor's questions.

Hoover said the overall crime rate in the Northeastern states increased only eight per cent during the nine months, compared to a 10 per cent hike in the West, 11 per cent in the South and 13 per cent in the North Central States.

By population, cities of more than 1 million showed the lowest crime rise, only 7 per cent, of all urban areas.

Ellen Swanson Unloads 585 for 'First 500' Trio

KINGSTON — Ellen Swanson got her career first "500" in the Early Birds League. And it was a whopper—a rousing 385 off lines of 160, 214, 211. Not bad for a 139 average bowler. There was another career first "500"—the 540 by Jennie Corrado. Other qualifiers included: Beverly Peterson 200-510, Lillian Tyler 508, Sue Balash 503.

Team results: K&S Electric 3, Bryant's Esso 0; Kingston Print Shop 2, Wisneski Floor Covering 1; Guido's Rest 2, Nick's Heating 1; Alpine 2, Bluestone Inn 1; Vogel's Girls 2, Sam Day's Citgo 1; Schultz Taxi 2, Wilbur Oil 1.

Maroon Wrestlers Open With Rondout

KINGSTON — Kingston High School's wrestling team will open its 1969-70 season against Rondout tonight at home.

Coach Ed Pfeifer has plenty of reason to be optimistic about the Maroon's outlook as they are coming off a 0-12 season. "Where can be go, but up," said Pfeifer.

The team received a big blow as one of the two top wrestlers from last year has decided not to wrestle this year. Pete Stoll, who incidentally was seeded No. 1 in the DUSO two years ago. "That will force us to forfeit one of the upper weight classes until we find a replacement for Stoll," added Pfeifer.

Parents of the wrestling team members were invited to a wrestle off Wednesday night and to see what wrestling is like at the scholastic level. Seventy-five parents turned out and were surprised at what they saw.

During an explanation and demonstration period on safety to the parents, Coach Pfeifer showed how soft the mats were. Pfeifer took a raw egg and tossed it high into the air and allowed it to drop to the mat, surprise to all the egg didn't break.

Returning to the squad this year are: Bob O'Reilly, the No. 1 man on the team, a senior.

WAITING FOR THE CALL — Cassius Clay toys with boxing gloves in suite at New York Hotel, biding his time while the Clay-Joe Frazier fight mess is cleared up in Florida. City of Tampa rejected the bout Wednesday. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Clay - Frazier Bout Booted From Tampa

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — That heavyweight title fight between Cassius Clay and Joe Frazier shifted scene again today as Florida promoters battled public opinion and threats of legal action for the distinction of settling a "national question."

Promoter Ron Gorton, backing up in the face of strong public reaction, withdrew his plans to hold the fight in Tampa and joined forces with former rodeo star Pete Ashlock to book the Clay-Frazier battle in a domed stadium near Orlando Feb. 17.

Still unsettled is the public objection to Clay's conviction for refusal to serve in the armed services, a factor blamed for shifts in site for the proposed match from the Miami area to Tampa and now to Orlando.

An Orlando man, Larry Sunbrock, petitioned a federal court Thursday for a restraining order that would keep Clay from fighting for money anywhere in the court's area of jurisdiction — which includes Tampa, Orlando and Jacksonville.

Clay, said Sunbrock, should be kept out of the professional ring because he is "a convicted felonious draft dodger who is under sentence for violation of the U.S. Selective Service Act."

Clay was stripped of his title by the World Boxing Association after he refused to take the

Boston's Carleton Wrecks the Rangers

By United Press International

One way to shake a jinx could be to move to another country.

Wayne Carleton, who tried almost everything else, has every reason to believe today that he outskated the bad luck that's been tailing him when he was traded from Toronto to the Boston Bruins. Even better, he may have passed the jinx along to the New York Rangers.

Just 36 hours after he was dealt to the Bruins for Jim Harrison, Carleton scored both his team's goals Thursday night as Boston ended New York's unbeaten string at 14 games with a 2-1 victory.

In other games Thursday night, the Minnesota Stars tied the Detroit Red Wings, 2-2, and the Philadelphia Flyers beat the Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-3.

Carleton, who had only one assist in six games with Toronto this season, opened the scoring with his first goal in the second minute of play. After Dave Balon brought New York even midway through the first period, Carleton got the winner at 19:11 of the second period.

The victory was important for the third-place Bruins, since it boosted them to within four points of the East Division-leading Rangers.

McCovey Slugging With .656 Average

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie McCovey of the San Francisco Giants and the Cincinnati Reds took slugging honors in the National League during the 1969 season.

Official "miscellaneous records" released today showed McCovey, the league's most Valuable Player, won the individual title for the second straight year. His hits accounted for 322 total bases in 491 times at bat for a slugging average of .656.

That was well ahead of Atlanta's Hank Aaron who had a .607 average on 332 total bases in 577 times at bat.

The Reds took the team slugging title with 2,379 total bases in 5,634 times at bat for a .422 average. The Pittsburgh Pirates, who nosed out the Reds for the team batting championship, were second in slugging with 2,238 total bases in 5,626 times at bat for a .398 average.

The Reds had four players among the top 15 individual sluggers and the Pirates had two.

Lee May of Cincinnati was sixth with .529; Tony Perez finished in a tie with Rusty Staub of Montreal for seventh with .526; Pete Rose was ninth with .512 and Johnny Bench was 12th with .487.

The Pirates grabbed off the fourth and fifth positions with Willie Stargell at .556 and Roberto Clemente at .544.

McCovey also entered his name into the major league record books by receiving 45 intentional walks.

Aaron's 332 total bases led the league and it was the eighth time he has done that—a major league record.

Bobby Bonds of San Francisco set a major league record of striking out 187 times.

Another player who led the league in a category which he would just as soon forget was Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs, who grounded into 21 double plays. Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals was the top man among regulars in avoiding hitting into double plays. He did it only twice.

Coleman, Highland at Home; KHS Hosts Troy High Saturday

By MORT LAFFIN

Many key basketball contests are on tap Friday night in the Ulster County area, with the cagers of Troy High moving into the Kate Walton Field House for a Saturday night tilt with the Maroons of Kingston High.

Other games in the area will find John A. Coleman opening their home season against Tri-Valley, New Paltz at Pine Bush in an Ulster County Athletic League contest, with Ontarioa traveling to Marlboro and Wallkill at Highland, also in the UCL.

DCSL State

In Dutchess County, Arlington High travels to Poughkeepsie in a big Dutchess County Scholastic League Central Section clash.

Other DCSL games are: Saugerties at Our Lady of Lourdes, John Jay at Roosevelt, Beacon at Ketcham. In the Bi-Valley division: Haldane at Millbrook, Dover at Pawling, Oakwood at Rhinebeck and Pine Plains at Red Hook.

Coleman has, so far, been the surprise of the season, jumping off to a 3-1 start. The only loss the Statesmen have suffered came at the hands of Monticello of the DUSO League. Coach Bill DuBois' quintet has faced Tri-Valley before and recorded their first win of the season, 55-23.

Chris Seche, Craig Renn, Jack Fitzgerald, Bob Bouchard and Pat Harder have been outstanding for Coleman. This year's team is the winningest in the school's brief history after downing New Paltz, 63-51 Tuesday night.

DuBois feels that if his squad can continue to cut down on turnovers and the "fourth quarter blahs," they will continue to surprise their fans. A hard working group, the Statesmen should make this year a banner one for the team. DuBois and the fans.

Kingston-Troy

Kingston has had trouble getting started. Most of this is due to the fact that the team is composed of sophomores, juniors and seniors with little or no experience, plus one or two freshmen.

Coach Mike Rienzo inserted

Jim Carroll into the lineup Tuesday night against Poughkeepsie, in place of Bob Terwilliger and the shorter Carroll did an outstanding job. Don Williams, Rocky Johnson, Pete Boyd and Bruce Gerbarg did a fine job in the game with the Pioneers, but fell to their strength and height advantage in the late going.

Troy comes in with a 1-2 mark having been defeated by Albany High, 60-56, in their last game. They also lost to St. Nicholas of Talentine, while defeating Hudson.

The Class A school's coach, Willy Hammond, has a team of sophomores, however, two of them are the team's leading scorers, Sylvester Cantei hits for 15 slugs per game, while Bill Williams averages 19. Both boys JV games starting at 6:30 p.m., are listed at 6-1 and are the tallest members of the team.

The Troy defense employs a combination of man-to-man and zone while offensively Hammond likes to use the three-in, two-out, guard around style of play.

Ontario-Marlboro

Ontario and Marlboro meet on the Dukes court in a battle of the scholastics for first place in the UCL. The Dukes have zipped Walkill while the Indians hold a decision over Rondout. The Ganders had been favored to take the crown at the beginning of the season. But, the defending champs have made a Texas-Arkansas type of situation out of the UCL.

All games will begin with pre-points per game, while Bill Williams averages 19. Both boys JV games starting at 6:30 p.m., are listed at 6-1 and are the tallest members of the team.

Gunner Maravich Sinks 61 Points

He's just a gunner, some say, but there's no denying that Pistol Pete Maravich of Louisiana State has replaced Lew Alcindor as the outstanding attraction in college basketball these days.

The senior 6-foot-5 All-American, who creates excitement whenever he steps onto the court, threw in 61 points to lead LSU over Vanderbilt Thursday night 109-86.

This is a record for the Southeastern Conference, but short of Pistol Pete's personal high of 66 which he tallied last season against Tulane.

Pete sank 26 of his 54 field goal tries and converted nine of 10 free throws. In addition to his shooting, dribbling and zip-like passes Pistol Pete demonstrated he is more than just a gunner with 10 rebounds and five assists.

The No. 1 collegiate high scorer now has scored 147 points in three games for the unbeaten Bayou Tigers and has a career total of 2,433 as he closes in on Oscar Robertson's all-time collegiate record of 2,973.

Maravich's heroics against Vanderbilt overshadowed the nationally third-ranked New Mexico State against Brigham Young.

The Aggies won 80-78 in overtime on two free throws by Chito Reyes with 21 seconds left. A 25-foot jumper by BYU's Steve Kelly with seven seconds on the clock had tied the regulation game at 72-72.

Duquesne, No. 7 in the Associated Press poll, wasn't so fortunate. The Dukes lost their second straight on the road as the Iowa Hawkeyes pulled away in the closing minutes for a 98-87 victory.

Purdue, No. 14, rolled over Idaho State 116-95 even though All-American Rick Mount sat

Eye Operation for Leotis

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Heavyweight Leotis Martin of Philadelphia will undergo an eye operation Friday for an injury believed suffered in his knockout victory over Sonny Liston in Las Vegas, Nev., last Saturday.

Penny Schafer, Martin's manager, said Martin will undergo surgery for a detached retina of the right eye.

Schafer said Martin complained of clouded vision after the seventh round of the Liston bout but returned to knock out the former champion in the ninth round.

Two doctors examined Martin earlier this week and confirmed the retina injury.

College Cage Clan Gathers at New Paltz

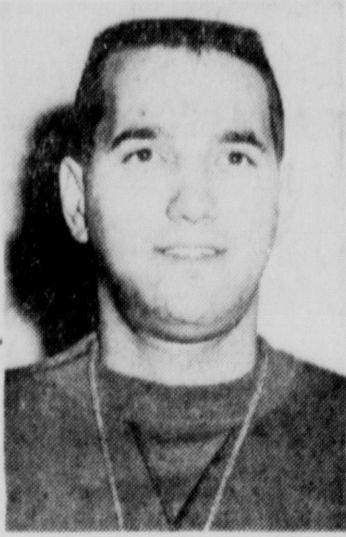

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

NEW PALTZ — This ancient village, steeped in Revolutionary lore, citadel of the intelligentsia and home of the bearded activists, becomes the play in the Ulster County's collegiate basketball clan Saturday.

All the collegiate talent will assemble in brightly lit Elting Gym on the State U campus, as the Hawk Frosh host Ulster County Community College at 5:30 p.m. and the New Paltz varsity hosts Fredonia at 7:40 p.m. in a State of New York Athletic (SUNYAC) contest.

There will be some interesting contrasts in motion during the doubleheader.

Coach Mike Perry comes into New Paltz sitting almost on top of the Eastern junior college basketball world — His UCCS Senators are 3-1 on the season, ranked No. 2 in the first Region XV ratings and a strong favorite to capture their third straight Mid Hudson Conference title.

MIKE PERRY

After an opening game loss to top-rated Broome Tech (76-73), Ulster won crucial road games—102-101 over Nassau and 80-78 at Rockland—then routed Sullivan 88-62 in the home opener Wednesday. They could have scored 125 points, if Coach Perry had closed the gates of mercy.

On the other hand, Coach Doug Sheppard of State U, operating on a 4-year level, faces the formidable task of moulding a SUNYAC contender after a 7-14 season last year. The Hawks are 1-3 at the moment, having lost to Westfield (Conn.), Cortland and Oneonta after topping Stony Brook, 78-76, in the seasonal opener.

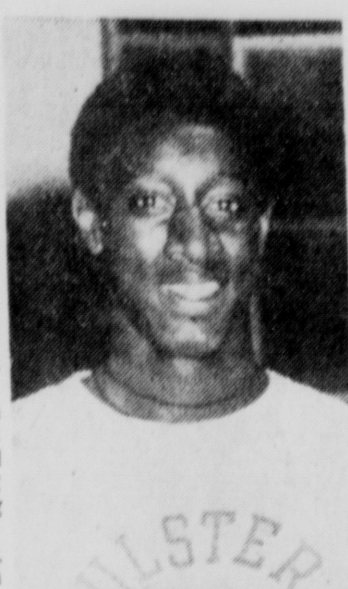

EARL TURNER

Coach Perry has a solid, veteran team built around a gifted performer in Jerry Moss, who scored 22 points in 28 minutes against Sullivan. He was the Moss of 1968-69. Add such talent as Tony Pough, Gary Kirkwood, Ray Lindhorst, Glenn Berry, Linell Marshall, Larry Trippodo and Ed Torroni and you have a brilliant junior college team.

Coach Doug Sheppard, who has instilled new spirit in the Hawks, has a diamond in the rough in Earl Turner, a 6-foot sophomore from North Babylon, L.I. Turner, who has an amazing variety of shots, led the Hawk Frosh last year and appears destined to rank among the all-time New Paltz scoring greats.

Team Captain Jim Leonardo, Sam Garafalo and Rich Gabriele give Sheppard a formidable foursome. After that,

JERRY MOSS

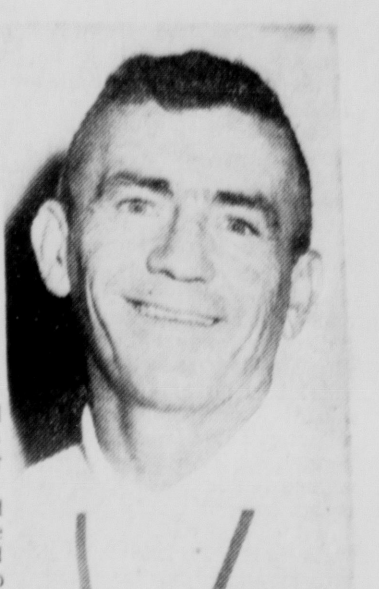

It's touch and go and the veteran mentor is looking for that solid fifth man.

If the State Frosh can catch the spirit of the varsity, they might give Ulster a real battle in the preliminary game. But from here it doesn't look promising.

On the other hand, the Hawk varsity should snap out of their three-game slump and handle Fredonia. The first big step in that direction would be a cut down on turnovers when the going gets heated.

Gabriel is a top rebounder. Turner, Leonardo and Garafalo can score. It boils down to ball control under pressure.

The Hawks are on the prowl for big, agile scorers for the future. Give Turner a hand when Leonardo and Garafalo depart. But for the moment, Fredonia is the target.

DOUG SHEPPARD

Sonics Lower Boom on Knicks

SEATTLE (AP) — Player-coach Lenny Wilkens sat down with his big men and told them what they had to do. They did it.

They did it so well the usually bedraggled Seattle SuperSonics stopped the National Basketball Association powerhouse New York Knicks 112-105 Thursday night.

"I've been attempting to get our guys to believe in themselves and believe they can do the job," Wilkens said after the last-place Sonics ended the Knicks' road game winning streak at 13. "We had a team meeting before the game and I told Bob Rule, Bob Boozer and John Tresvant that we had to play a strong board game, or we'd be out of it."

The front line men obviously took the message to heart as they outboarded the Knicks 65 to 54. Rule led the way with 14 rebounds.

Rule, whose 28 points nullified a 27-point performance by New York's Mike Riordan, scored 14 points in the final quarter to pace the Sonics. Tresvant wasn't far behind as he scored 12 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter when the Sonics came out from behind a 79-76 deficit.

In other NBA games, Chicago beat San Francisco 110-104 and Detroit triumphed over Cincinnati 119-116 in overtime. In the American Basketball Association, Indiana whipped Kentucky 115-96. Washington pummeled Denver 126-113 and Miami beat the New York Nets 133-126.

Clem Haskins scored eight points in the final four minutes as Chicago held off a late San Francisco drive and widened their second-place lead over the Warriors in the Western Division to 1½ games. The victory also moved the Bulls to within three games of Atlanta, the division leader.

Oscar Robertson scored his season high with 44 points for the Royals and Jimmy Walker hit for 30 points for the Pistons.

In the American Basketball Association, Miami stopped the New York Nets, 112-105, despite 40 points by Lavern Tart. Don Freeman poured in a season high 43 points for Miami against the Nets. The Floridians overcame an 11-point deficit on two occasions.

Quinteros in Lead

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Juan Quinteros fired a sizzling, five-under-par 65 Thursday to take a one-stroke lead in the opening round of Argentina's masters golf tournament.

The grey-haired, 31-year-old Argentine pro put together nines of 31 and 34 to outshoot such internationally known golfers as Jack Nicklaus, George Archer, Bert Yancey and Roberto de Vicenzo.

There were 87 players from the United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru and Uruguay vying at the suburban, 6,442-yard Olivos Golf Club, an hour's drive from downtown Buenos Aires.

"To be quite honest, I'm surprised," said Quinteros, who was also front-runner for the first two rounds of the 1967 masters before falling back.

He finished Thursday's round with three consecutive birdies, but fell short of the tourney record of 63 held by De Vicenzo, Argentina's best-known golf pro.

"I think I've got a good chance to win it, a very good chance," Quinteros said after the round. "I feel good, I'm playing well and I feel a little lucky."

Bert Yancey, a former West Point cadet from Miami, Fla., shot a sparkling four-under 66 even though "I didn't play well at all" to share second place with Argentines Florentino Molina, Oscar Nari and Juan Carlos Nunez.

Yancey put together nines of 33 but blamed the "hot weather" for taking the edge off his game. He chipped for an eagle on the first hole and got a birdie on the second. From then on it was straight pars except for two birds and a bogie on the back nine.

Defending champion George Archer of Gilroy, Calif., shot an even par 70 and thought "it was a fortunate 70 at that."

"I felt really tired and pooped out," said Archer, who won the U.S. Masters last April. "I could have shot a very bad score today but I was lucky."

Three-time champ De Vicenzo, who also carded a 70, summed up his day this way: "I played lousy."

Nicklaus, one of the top tourney favorites, fired a dismal opening round 72.

"I drove well, I was good with my irons and I played pretty good except I couldn't putt," said Nicklaus. I two-putted every green on the course except one and that just about sums it all up."

RECORD BREAKER — Olympic decathlon champion, Bill Toomey (30) hits the tape in the 1500-meter event to shatter the old world decathlon record with a point total of 8,417. The previous record in the event was held by Kurt Bendlin of Germany who scored 8,319 points two years ago. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Toomey Sets New Decathlon Record

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—When of his career in the pole vault record of 8,319 set two years ago at Heidelberg, West Ger-ing in the decathlon a decade champion and after he cleared many. ago he barely cleared eight feet 14-inches, he knew he in the pole vault but he assured would break Kurt Bendlin's himself of a world record in the mark.

The Santa Barbara school teacher went on to amass 8,417 when he vaulted 14 feet. It was the best performance points to better Bendlin's

The world record performance came on Toomey's 10th decathlon of the year and 35th of his career.

Toomey, however, needed other top efforts besides that in the pole vault to set the record. He equalled his best performance in the 110-meter high hurdles with a mark of 14.3 seconds and he came through with his second best discus effort with a throw of 152.6.

The Olympian also threw the javelin 215 feet, 8 inches and climaxed the day's work at UCLA with a 4:39.4 time in the 1500-meter run.

"I knew when I cleared 14 feet in the pole vault that I had the record," Toomey said. "I was not about to relax then. Everything went perfectly. Things couldn't have been better."

Toomey praised the facilities at his disposal at UCLA where the decathlon was put on to give him a final chance in 1969 for a record performance. John Warkentin was second with 7,440 points, Barry King of England third with 7,191 and George Pannell fourth with 7,094.

Pannell said he expected against a good ground attack.

Ara Is Confident

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—his players to remain in shape during the holiday period "because they are dedicated boys," Coach Ara Parseghian treated a Notre Dame banquet audience Thursday night with the words "I have every confidence we can knock off that No. 1 team."

Parseghian's statement brought a roar from a crowd of 1,200 attending the university's 50th annual banquet in this 100th year of college football.

That No. 1 team, of course, is Texas, No. 9 Notre Dame's Cotton Bowl opponent Jan. 1.

Parseghian, whose past season experience has been limited to various All-Star games, admits that weather, team dedication and innumerable other factors will play a heavy role in any success the Irish might enjoy in the Cotton Bowl.

Parseghian said he expected

ERICKSON HAIR CONSULTANT WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE AT THE HOWARD JOHNSON MOTEL, EXIT 19 KINGSTON, N. Y. SATURDAY, DEC. 13 HOURS 12 NOON to 8:00 P. M.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 12—Now is the time to act on this great opportunity. Every hair-worried person (man or woman) should take advantage of this FREE CONSULTATION. Many users have reported not only stopping their hair from thinning, but are really growing more hair.

GUARANTEED You will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from the beginning to the end. Naturally we could not give you such a guarantee if it didn't work.

CAN'T HELP Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness, and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Erickson Hair Specialists cannot help those who are sick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already sick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead and are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

FREE CONSULTATION Just take a few minutes of your time on Saturday, Dec. 13, and see the Howard Johnson Motel, Exit 19, in Kingston, N. Y., between 12 noon and 8 p. m., and ask the Desk Clerk for H.M. Lile room number.

There is no charge or obligation... all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way.

Raiders and Colts Hand Picked in Sunday's Games

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The big shootout this week is in Oakland where the Raiders and the Kansas City Chiefs fight it out for top gun in the West in the American Football League.

Oakland won in Kansas City three weeks ago, 27-24, and is favored to do it again. The big incentive for the winner is to play on its own field against the East runnerup in the playoffs.

Eight games in the National Football League don't mean much because the four division titles already have been clinched by Los Angeles, Minnesota, Dallas and Cleveland.

Last week's record was 8-4-1, making it 107-41-8 for the season. Let's try again with all games Sunday unless otherwise noted.

NFL
Baltimore 24, Dallas 21 (Saturday)—John Unitas due to start but he has bad knee and may give way to Earl Morrall. Favored Cowboys list Calvin Hill, Walt Garrison and Bob Hayes as probables but may be saving their big game for Cleveland in two weeks.

Detroit 21, Los Angeles 20—An upset loss for the battered Rams who took a physical beating from Vikings and have only one aim—to get even with Minnesota Dec. 27. Lions may go with Bill Munson because Greg Landry has sprained right shoulder, and still have shot at third place money.

Minnesota 28, San Francisco 14—Vikings go for 12th straight in finale of home season (not counting playoffs). Bud Grant's boys came out of Ram game in good shape. John Brodie gave way to Steve Spurrier last week due to gimpy knee.

Cleveland 31, St. Louis 21—Browns want to keep winning with Dallas ahead. Cards showed nothing in 41-6 rout in New York but may be smarting from blast by owner Bill Bidwell.

Philadelphia 28, Atlanta 21—Flip a coin on this one. Eagles score points but so does the opposition. Falcons rolled it up on Saints last week. Could be a happy homecoming for Norm Van Brocklin at Franklin Field but home edge goes to Eagles.

Washington 35, New Orleans 28—with a chance at best record since 1955, what Redskins would dare disappoint Vince Lombardi? Saint runners will chew up Washington but Sonny Jurgensen will do it again.

Green Bay 17, Chicago 14—game losing slump with big effort every opponent with 33 touch-down passes for year. Lenny Ford should bring Giants home Dawson, held out last week, Nov. 2, 34-31 on a field goal by lead going into final game.

Denver 28, Cincinnati 24—Both Floyd Little, returned to action last week, had biggest day of clubs in tough shape for quarterbacks with Mike Taliaferro season against Bengals with 166 yards in 30-23 win Oct. 19. Denver front four will turn on the Oilers, ver front four will turn on the Oilers, ver front four will turn on the Oilers.

First Nites Gives Statement On Swim Club

In a statement issued today, Mrs. George C. Riftenbary, former advisor for Wiltwyck Country Club in the Mid-Hudson Winter Swim League, and last year's pool chairman, said the newly-formed Colonial Swim Club will in no way affect the Wiltwyck Country Club swim team or its affiliation with the Adirondack Association of the AAU next season.

Comprised mainly of Wiltwyck swimmers, the newly-formed swim club is under the jurisdiction of interested parents of members, as well as former members of the club, who desire to maintain their children's interest in the sport of swimming.

Since Wiltwyck Country Club has voted to combine golf and pool membership into one classification for 1970, single or family pool membership are no longer available.

James O'Hara, newly-appointed pool chairman, has reported, Mrs. Riftenbary said, that the same recreational and competitive program will again be available for Wiltwyck Country Club members next season.

The Colonial Swim Club, under the new title, will endeavor to operate solely as a winter swim league. It is hoped that all local youngsters interested in swimming and desiring this type of competitive program will be encouraged to do so.

Mrs. Vincent J. Andretta Jr. is chairman and may be contacted for further details. The Wiltwyck name will not be used in Mid-Hudson league.

Dear Abby

Tag Along with Hubby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. N. Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Roger and I have been married for less than a year and I could use some advice.

Roger was a confirmed bachelor (or so everyone thought) before he married me. Well, it seems that about five years ago he came very close to marrying another girl, but at the last minute something happened and the wedding never took place.

Anyway, Roger and this girl agreed to meet at the top of the Empire State building on July 4th, 1970, at 6 p.m. Eastern Standard time — exactly five years from the time they parted. They agreed that if either one married, they'd bring their spouse along.

Roger wants to keep the date, and he wants me to go with him. (We now live in Manchester, N. H.)

Abby, I don't care to meet the girl he almost married, but I don't want to seem like a jealous wife. What should I do?

THINKING OF 1970

DEAR THINKING: What if Roger's old girl is married and doesn't want to meet the man she almost married, so he sends HER alone? Then Roger and his old flame will be up there on the top of the Empire State building, just the two of them, with their memories? Silly girl. Go!

DEAR ABBY: For 27 years my husband and I have had a very good marriage. Then out of the blue, five months ago, I found him in the arms of a young woman who lived in one of our apartments. I kicked him out, and now he is living openly with HER. We haven't even had a preliminary hearing in court yet, so you can imagine how shocked I was to learn that a close relative of MINE had invited my husband and this woman to her home for dinner. I think that by doing this she is condoning what he did. Am I wrong? Also, if my husband is invited to dinner or any function and he brings HER, uninvited, would it be in order to ask them to leave?

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED: In answer to your first question, NO. To your second, YES.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have five school-age children. I am not saying that I am the best organized person in the world. Marvin (my husband) never complained. Every summer Marvin's sister, who teaches school in New York, comes to visit us for a month. We've always welcomed her visits—but no more!

While a guest in our home she would supervise the house-keeping, rearrange the drawers and cupboards, and act as a self-appointed "efficiency expert." I didn't mind, because I suspected she wanted to keep busy. However, I did mind when she started to find fault with the way I was raising the children.

After she left I was furious to learn that she thought it was her "duty" to speak to Marvin about his wife's "sloppy house-keeping, extravagance, and the poor training she is giving the children." Not one word to ME, mind you, but she told Marvin to try to "straighten ME out" before it was "too late."

My question to you: Do you think she is really a good person who wants me to be "straightened out" before it is "too late"? Or is she just a meddling old maid who can't keep her nose out of other people's affairs?

FURIOUS: DEAR FURIOUS: The latter. And tell Marvin that should his sister, the "efficiency expert," wish to visit you again, he should "straighten HER out," as she appears to be full of kinks.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the lazy engineer's wife who "hid" her dirty dishes in her oven made me laugh.

Before I had a dishwasher, I used to put my dirty dishes in a plastic dishpan and stick it in my oven to keep my kitchen looking neat.

Not once—but TWICE I forgot, and "pre-heated" my oven. Can you imagine the mess I found with my dirty dishes setting on the racks with great globs of plastic hanging off them? LESSON LEARNED

Horoscope By SIDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, DEC. 13, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on making important contacts. Day features friendship romance. Your creative abilities come to fore. You are especially attractive to opposite sex.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spotlight on achievement. A goal is reached. You are encouraged by special message, communication. Tonight you have fun — you also realize value of meaningful relationship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides with possible travel, vacation plans for future, holiday arrangements. Do some early shopping. Remember promises, hints. Follow through on hunch.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Permit one close to you to shine. Strive toward mature understanding. Some perplexing questions are about to be answered. Answers will come from within.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lie low. Play waiting game. Project which commands current interest may be more expensive than imagined. Realize this; hold your fire. Time is on your side, and patience is your ally.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): fine for get-together with co-workers, associates, those who share interests. You are about to finish important task. Accent quality. Avoid extremes. Stress sincere approach.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Key is to relax and enjoy yourself. Problems evaporate if you so permit them. Pressure is of your own making; know this and act accordingly. You get assurance of love.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Attention centers around home base. Your hunch about family member is apt to be correct. Make gesture which expresses genuine concern, kindness. You'll feel better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stress on necessity to communicate with relative. Don't hang on to foolish grudge. Show that you are a big person in best sense. Maybe a short trip will provide needed answers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money is accented as it has been in recent past. You have been discouraged by details. But some red tape is about to be removed. Don't ask for more than you can handle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Fine for improving appearance. Get some new clothes, shoes. Celebrate tonight. Or help someone else celebrate. Land knockout punch on potential blues.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may feel something is being concealed. That may be true — but it, in all likelihood, for your own good. Know this, and act accordingly. Don't snoop.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are frank, at times blunt. But you are also scrupulously honest. Social whirl has fatigued you. But you are due to settle down to work routine. Can be exciting if you bring forth creative resources.

South looked at dummy and relaxed. He was in a nice, comfortable, game contract and, if everything went well, he might make two overtricks. Certainly there was no reason to think about the whole play. He led dummy's jack of trumps. He led dummy's jack of trumps at trick two, just to see if the queen would cover. Not that he thought it would. East wasn't one of those automatic honor coverers.

When the queen did not appear, he put up his ace and then decided to set up a diamond discard for his potential club loser before playing any more trumps. He led his jack of diamonds. East took his ace and made the inspired return of a low trump.

South played his king after long thought, entered dummy with a diamond and tried the spade finesse. West took his king, played his queen of hearts to pull dummy's last trump, and continued with his 10 of clubs. South could discard his losing spade or losing club on dummy's last high diamond, but could not get rid of both of them and was one down.

East made the old remark, "When both sides play trumps, one is wrong." South had no answer.

He should have looked over dummy carefully after winning the club lead. If he had done that, he would have not led that one trump but would have started diamonds immediately.

This would make it impossible for the defense to pull dummy's last trump and he would have been able to ruff his last spade in dummy and make his contract.

Just for the record, South could have made the hand after bad start if he had simply stripped the West hand of diamonds and clubs and thrown West in with the queen of trumps to force a spade lead, but the simple line of just not leading a trump too early was a far better.

BLIND? (Comment) I feel sorry for "Not Hooked and Prud of It," who wrote you about turning in his friends. He doesn't know it but he is a manufactured product. He has been built to think and act in a way beneficial only to the people who built him.

A person who reports hooked friends to the police is no different from Judas, who turned Jesus over to the Romans. Mr. "Not Hooked" may have 20-20 eyesight, but he still is walking blind. His conscience must be bothering him. He did not sign his name.—My Name is R. D. in Houston.

(A.) We need more people today who fearlessly stand up for what they believe. You are one of these. You say what you think and you are not afraid to sign your name (I'm using only your initials) to an honest opinion. I salute you for this, even though I think you are mistaken and may at some time have to change your attitude.

This other boy is brave, too. He feels he is helping others toward more productive and successful lives by helping them to get rid of hang-ups that can lead down and down.

RINGS: (Q.) Is it OK to wear three rings? I am in junior high school.—Loves Rings in Philadelphia.

(A.) Seven would be better! But when you have three to five rings on one hand, don't overdo it by wearing bracelets, too. Enough is enough.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Only letters that include a stamped, self-addressed envelope will be answered.)

'That Girl' May Never Wed

NEW YORK (AP) — There have been marriages this year on "I Dream of Jeannie" and "My Three Sons," but the big question is when "That Girl" will marry that fellow she has been going with for more than three years.

Probably it is one TV marriage that will never take place, because matrimony would change the whole structure of the series.

The ABC comedy series on Thursday night started a two-part episode that had Ann Marie, the perennially hopeful actress, getting a job in a Los Vegas show. The change gave the series a chance to show the glitter of the resort town, but the program was interesting because the episode really began to play to Ted Bessell, the long-playing swimmer. When dear, devoted Donald first got smashed, accidentally of course, and then wound up with a bad hangover and a strange girl who said she was his new wife—well, it was a whole new approach for "That Girl." And sort of a nice change.

Most fun in an evening of channel jumping was the appearance of Elsa Lanchester in "It Takes a Thief." She played a retired superspy recalled to special duty.

Robert Wagner played the self-assured thief with his usual suave, but Miss Lanchester—vague, innocent British spinster—walked away with the ABC hour.

"It Takes a Thief" has never really caught on. Since it is now in a rough competitive time spot, it is probably too late to save it, but Miss Lanchester ought to help. It really is, week in and week out, more amusing than other action shows, including "Mission: Impossible."

CBS's "Children's Hour" series will start at noon EST Saturday with a 60-minute special called "J. T." It is a story about a young black boy and an injured cat. NBC's weekend contribution to children's amusement will be a two-hour musical adaptation of "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates," filmed in Holland and Norway with Eleanor Parker, Richard Basehart and Cyril Ritchard. It will be shown Sunday at 7 p.m. EST.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The caravel was the favorite ship of Spanish and Portuguese explorers. It was light, fast, and considered good for the oceans of the 15th and 16th centuries. The World Almanac notes, "Two of Columbus' ships, the Nina and the Pinta, were caravels carrying 25 crew members each. Single-decked, 70 feet long, these vessels were very maneuverable, but exceedingly uncomfortable."

400 Heroin Addicts in New Paltz

A Grim and Shocking Revelation

By BRUCE KAUFMAN

NEW PALTZ
A survey conducted by individuals close to the drug scene here, has revealed that there might be as many as 400 hard-core heroin addicts residing in this southern Ulster community.

This grim and shocking revelation was made by Joel Kohut, a leader in the so-called "hip community" here, at a meeting sponsored by the New Paltz Narcotics Guidance Council here, Thursday night. According to Kohut the data for the survey, which was requested by Dr. Jeffery Wiersum, chairman of the three-man council, was derived from extensive discussions with drug users, physicians, and officials at the nearby State University.

Speaking before a group of about 50 council volunteers Kohut, who is the editor of "The Gargoyl Press," an underground paper, said "We have a drug problem here in New Paltz, and it is a lot heavier than we think it is." Specifically he said there were between 300 and 400 hard-core heroin addicts and probably twice as many heroin users residing in New Paltz.

Dr. Wiersum, who chaired the meeting stated as a training session for the volunteers, said that Kohut's findings constitute a fair evaluation of the scope of heroin usage in the community.

Currently the Medical Association of New Paltz, which Dr. Wiersum is affiliated with, is conducting a methadone program with 35 hard-core addicts.

Methadone is a non-euphoric narcotic substitute for heroin.

Kohut, who irked many of the participants in the meeting with his candid and often critical observations about the "straight community," nevertheless acceded that the only way to curb the use of "junk" would be through a total community effort.

"If you want our help you must look beyond our appearances," the bearded poet-naturalist said.

Kohut said that the best method of dealing with addicts and potential addicts is by demonstrating concern and working with them on a one to one basis.

He also endorsed the proposal put forth by the Narcotics Guidance Council calling for the establishment of a drug center in the community.

Earlier in the meeting there was considerable discussion regarding how such a center would be organized.

Dr. Wiersum said that it should be a place where people, particularly young people, can gather in a social atmosphere and receive information and counseling on the dangers of drug abuse. He would also like to see the methadone program moved into this center.

While most in attendance seemed to approve the idea of a center, some questioned whether the informal atmosphere would be appropriate for a drug control program.

In order to go ahead with the proposed center, the council must receive preliminary funding from the New Paltz Town Board and then have its program approved by the State

Narcotics Control Commission. The question came before the Town Board in executive session at its regular meeting Wednesday night, but was tabled pending further study.

Power Plant at Storm King Won't Hurt Fish...Con Ed

NEW PALTZ, N.Y. (AP) — The controversial power plant proposed for Storm King Mountain near Cornwall would have no serious effect on Hudson River waterlife, a committee for Consolidated Edison Co. contended Thursday.

But a conservationist said the 6.2 per cent fish loss which the committee called "acceptable," would be a major loss when added to the losses from other industrial facilities along the river.

Some 50 persons attended a Federal Power Commission hearing in New Paltz, but only one spoke against the pumped-storage project.

The FPC had ordered a study after Con Ed plans were challenged by the Scenic Hudson River Preservation Conference, a conservationist group, and by communities near the project site.

Con Ed received an FPC license to build in 1965, but the U.S. Court of Appeals revoked it after the protests were made.

Only scattered questions were asked of the 3-year study, paid for by Con Ed.

The opposition speaker was Rodney Vandibert, director of Scenic Hudson, who called for study to determine the collective impact of present and future facilities.

Biologist Dr. James McCann of the Con Ed committee said such studies "would take an incredibly long time," and would not be practical.

The plant would pump water from the Hudson River to a reservoir behind the Storm King Mountain. The water would be released at hours of high power need to generate electricity.

Con Ed claimed the project would reduce New York City area air pollution.

The Scenic Hudson group wants Con Ed to build a nuclear gas turbine combination plant. They say this would save $10 million in the first 20 years. The company maintains the plan would cost $119 million extra in the first 20 years and increase capital costs by $75 million.

The committee concluded in its report "that the evidence indicates that there would not be any adverse effects to the striped bass and American shad fisheries of the Hudson River from a pumped storage generating plant at Cornwall."

Northern Dutchess Newspaper Forced to Suspend Publication

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK

The Gazette-Advertiser, a weekly newspaper serving Northern Dutchess County communities, has suspended publication dating from Dec. 4.

Editor-publisher Michael J. Strong, who has guided the destiny of the newspaper for the past 11 years, arrived at that decision Wednesday.

He emphasized to The Freeman that at least four persons had approached him with a possible purchase in mind, including an area resident, and that some decision might be forthcoming as to the continuance of the 123-year-old weekly combination by Saturday.

The Rhinebeck Gazette combined with the Red Hook Advertiser Nov. 1 of this year, and began publishing with a new photo offset format shortly thereafter. Printing was done by the Walden Printing Company.

The Gazette began publication in 1846, and the Advertiser in 1923. Both media were purchased by Strong's grandfather, Jacob Hill Strong, in 1907. Jacob H. Strong Jr., his son and the father of Michael Strong, succeeded him in 1938 as publisher.

Michael Strong gave as his basic philosophy for the weekly newspaper a true "reflection of the community," in effect a chronicle.

"I have tried to steer clear of the sensational," he said. "I desire to 'do something different.'"

He believed that the local newspaper must retain local emphasis.

Strong, 33, and the third generation involved with the two weekly newspapers, is still somewhat undecided about his personal plans for the future, although he indicated that he might seek some line of work outside journalism.

Two reasons given for relinquishing the Gazette-Advertiser were the cost of publication and a personal of the sensational," he said. "I desire to 'do something different.'"

Yallum's Has Suitable Gifts

UPTOWN KINGSTON
This is the time of year when the womenfolk travel far and wide to find a suitable gift for a man "that has everything."

At 317 Wall Street, Yallum's can solve that problem. They have thousands of gift ideas displayed on the racks, tables and walls of the establishment.

For the real sport, the outdoorsman, for the horseman or the pilot of a bucking four-wheel drive wagon, there are broad selections of fancy and unique shirts and jackets in the new loud colors. There is also leather, suede with fringe, braid and neckpieces to match. They also have unusual hats, the rough-rider, safari and wide-brim cowboy in all colors and sizes.

There are many excellent selections under Yallum's own brand. There are sport jackets, the conventional type for every taste and three-quarter fur jackets. Yallum calls them fun furs for dress.

Girls, while you're there buying dad's gift, take a look at the new high style winter boots for women and the authentic Greek bags. And there are also some very fine buys for the upcoming Christmas party.

There are myriad ideas among the accessory line for men and some new ideas your man may not have seen before.

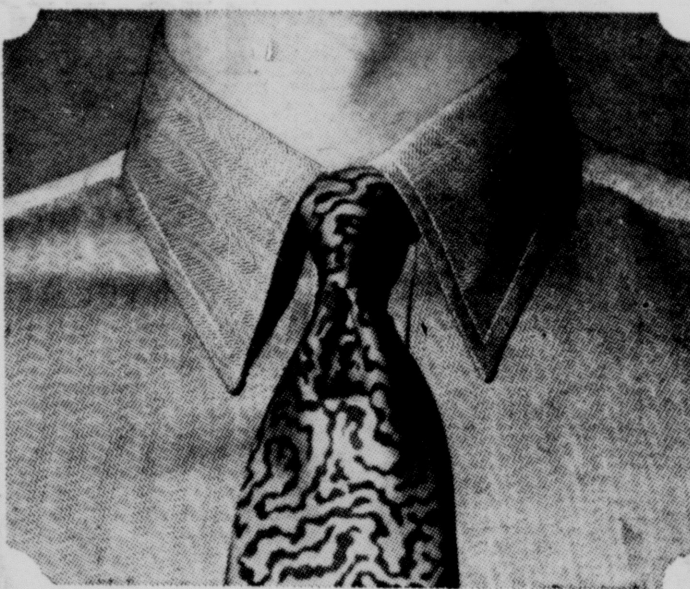

The shoe department has the latest accepted fashions in every style. Buckles on shoes are the big thing this year and there are all sizes, shapes and colors.

There isn't a man anywhere that doesn't need a new wide tie, if he's a male that follows style. If not there are still some slimjims around. The new square bottom tie, some of them woolies are also a popular gift item.

This could be the place to end the search for that special gift for the man in your life.

Fire Hazard Always Present

NEW YORK

The hazard of fire is always present — especially on Christmas. This is the message of the season from the New York State Division of Fire Safety. There are a few basic rules about trees decorations and gifts which you should keep in mind.

Select a fresh tree, saw it off one inch above the original cut, and keep its base in water until you dispose of it. Don't rely on do-it-yourself flameproofing. These treatments aren't really effective. Set your tree up away from any heat source and where it won't block doorways or stairs. Artificial trees should have a label certifying slow-burning materials. And metal trees should never have anything but indirect lighting.

Then inspect your strings of lights. Discard any with frayed wires, loose connections, or broken sockets. Replace them with lights carrying an underwriters' label. If they are to be used outdoors, make sure they have an underwriters' tag for this service. Electric cord sets with built-in fuses are strongly recommended.

Men's Clothes... Revolution Goes On

NEW YORK (UPI)—At first intrepid astronauts are likely to influence men's styles for years to come, ushering in the jump suit or a modified version like the "siren suit" Sir Winston Churchill wore during the World War II Blitz.

With the advent of space there are new techniques and new technologies and fabrics that reflect the intense solar heat of space and retain the body warmth against the minus 400 degrees of outer space when astronauts are in darkness.

The prospects are endless—air conditioned clothing as pioneered by the astronauts could keep a man comfortable on the Sahara Desert or in the Antarctic. Flying clothes for the jet traveler who can be comfortable in the wintry New York and just as comfortable in the same clothes in Central Africa a few hours later.

Form-Fitting

Already there are space age designers—Ruben Torres of Paris, the Texas-born Mexican-American whose knitted, form-fitting clothes and zippered closures remind one of space suits. Or the Finnish-born Scandinavian designer Sighsten Heergaard whose designs are those of the years to come.

Cardin's first showing of men's wear was in 1961 and in his own words, the 200 young students gathered in the Hotel Crillon "Cried 'oorah! 'oorah!'" and the London Daily Mail and the London Daily Express wrote nice things and said "bravo" and "marvellous" and "I was so 'happy'."

But the world was not yet ready for Cardin who had used big industrial zippers on space suits and brought in business suits that were pres de corps (body hugging) and whose sleeves were set high and tapered and whose trousers were slim and pencil-like.

Within a few years every manufacturer in Europe was copying this look and, without shame, they called it their "Cardin Jacket." Every manufacturer in the United States copied his hat which was sharply curled up at the back and snapped nearly down in front. The same went for shoes, ties and other things.

It was not until the fall of 1965 that Cardin hit America. Danny Zarem, men's wear merchandise manager for Bonwit Taylor, opened a Cardin boutique in New York and the double-breasted Cardin blazer became a status symbol.

Band Together

On April 6, 1967, a group of businessmen in New York formed the Intercontinental Men's Apparel Corp., to manufacture and sell Cardin clothes in America. "Now," Cardin says "apply," "there are 197 factories in 27 countries making Pierre Cardin clothing."

This became the decade of the designers and two years ago Oleg Cassini and Bill Blass, two of the more famous names in the world of women's haute couture, joined the ranks and were followed by the other designers in New York, Paris and Rome.

"In my opinion, the past decade really started two years ago when we passed from the neanderthal stage of men's fashion into the revolutionary stage," Cassini said. "There are lots of pros and cons about men's fashions, as there are about the Vietnam War, but better taste does prevail now and I believe that is because more often than not, a button this is in the hands of the designer," says John D. Gray, President of HS&M.

It was the decade of brighter colors and of bright patterns and Blass was foremost in this when he decided to "get men out of the same old dull turkey and into shape to more accurately show their physique and not the phony padding."

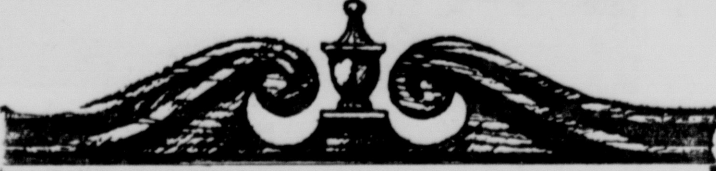

The fashion revolution spread to the great clothing companies including Hart Schaffner & Marx of Chicago which employed not just one but a stable of a dozen of the world's better known designers.

"Ten years ago the average male remained safely hidden behind the drab anonymity of Sagner, Inc., and Clubman, his uniform, a dark three button single breasted suit, and, in Frederick, Md.

Express Personality

"Today he is inclined to express his personality in selecting his wardrobe from the wide variety of styles and colors now available in men's clothing departments throughout America. Today men are unafraid of the criticism which would have deterred them 10 years ago from showing originality in their wardrobes."

"The major change in men's clothing in America during the past decade has been one of attitude—and one of mind."

GIFT IDEA—How about a sweater for hubby asks Ike Jacobson. Mrs. George Pappas is the customer at Jacobson's men's shop in Uptown Kingston. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Jacobson's— Personal Help

KINGSTON give their men folk for Jacobson's Men's Shop at 39 John Street, a headquarters for men's apparel in this city since 1888 is offering personal assistance to women buying gifts for their men folk.

Ike Jacobson, proprietor of the establishment said this makes the big difference when women are doing their Christmas shopping. This personal service will give them advice on what the well-dressed male is wearing and the trend of the new styles.

The Men's Shop has holiday displays throughout the store which provide ideas for the girls who have not made up their minds what they would like to

The shop features the top brands in clothing including Hammonton-Park, College Hall and Kingsridge. Jacobson notes the shop features natural shoulders clothing with no padding, with or without vests. He said vests are coming back strong. The stock in dress shirts includes Van Heusen, Pendleton and other fine brands.

There will be many gifts of ties this year with the new wider widths coming back in style. Jacobson said he finds some resistance to the new widths. However, either way, the shop has a choice of 1½, 2½ and 3½ inch widths.

He pointed out that the shop carries the popular London Fog coat in all new styles. And, there is a large selection now in all sport coat models.

The shop also carries all men's accessories and head wear in Stetson, Mallory and others in new shapes and styles.

He promises every man the best fitting possible to meet the complete satisfaction of every customer.

If you want to make the male in your life really happy and pleased with his Christmas gift, come and see us, let us help you make the best choice, the genial proprietor said.

Skiing Easy As....

If you can walk . . . you can ski.

That's the motto of John McGrath, owner of the Four Seasons Ski and Sport Shop in Phoenicia. McGrath is a former New York State Interscholastic combined champion; former National and International Competition racer and a member of the Professional Ski Instructors of America.

No matter what your age, whether you're an old ski buff, or a novice on the slopes, McGrath has this very important tip. Good physical condition is a must before putting those skis on. If you haven't been exercising all year long, start now. Start with a few exercises each day, don't try to do too much too soon. The same applies the first few days on the slopes.

McGrath suggests that you purchase equipment meant for beginners, from a qualified dealer and always take ski instructions from a certified ski instructor.

On the way to the slopes, stop in and visit. Ask advice and ski slope condition reports. And if its equipment you need there is a complete selection to fill all your needs.

Hammond Organs

Add a New Dimension to Your Life

KINGSTON — Want to introduce a new dimension into your life, one in which you will experience the satisfaction of creating sounds in beautiful and pleasing arrangements?

The first step toward this realization is a visit to the new Hammond Organ Studio on Albany Avenue just north of the Foxhall Avenue intersection.

It's unbelievable how easy it is to sit down at the console of one of these Hammond or Thomas organs and in a few minutes of following the simple instructions be able to play recognizable tunes.

Cindy Flynn, the young lady in attendance starts you off with a few simple instructions and before you know it you're sold on organ music and trying to figure out how you can own one of these beautiful instruments.

Remarkable Features

One of the most remarkable features—an innovation in recent years—is the rhythm bandbox which when activated gives a steady automatic beat in almost any beat desired. There are fifteen selections in all including Rock, Watusi, Samba, Beguine, R h u m b a, Boogie, Waltz, Foxtrot and others. Some panels also give a choice of beat sounds, such as block, brush, string and others. This could all be very confusing in print, but in actual practice it is a simple procedure, push two buttons or levers and proceed to play with the beat of your choice.

Some rhythm bandboxes are built-in while others are portable and may be purchased separately as an added accessory.

There is an organ model for beginners which further simplifies the learning procedure. The keys when illuminated are identified by letter and the lower keyboard for chords is color coded. For example, one chord is designated by all red keys, another by blue keys and so forth.

Individuals with no musical background at all, can in a short time play popular songs for their own satisfaction. And who knows, the interest in music could lead to a whole new career.

Anyone can follow the simple music sheet instructions to pick out the tune. The real problem is how to add the appropriate chords. The color-coded chord keyboard solves this so that you too can make those beautiful sounds on the organ.

Bonus of Lessons

If you buy one of these organs there is a bonus of six free lessons in the firm's organ studio across the street from the showroom.

Howard Houghtaling, noted area organist is the instructor at the firm's studio. This is part of the Hammond service.

The firm headed by E. B. Newberry, president also has a showroom studio in Poughkeepsie on New Hackensack Road opposite the New Hackensack Plaza. Both display organs and the Everett and Cable-Nelson spinet-type pianos.

Newberry said at country fair and other exhibits, he frequently overhears people at the displays say, "I'd buy one in a minute, if I could play." Newberry noted that about 75 per cent of the people who buy an organ never played a musical instrument in their life. He said many can play sooner because of the sustaining feature of the organ. It only takes one visit to the studio to be convinced.

Men's Theater Suit For Almost All Formal Occasions

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bill Miller has been right so many times on his introductions of avant garde styles for men that when he has something to say on the subject people stop to listen. This time he has come up with what might be called the theater suit for almost formal occasions.

The coat is frockcoat length in rich fabrics that give it a somewhat formal appearance and is designed to augment business suits designed for business, and sports wear designed for sports. It is for such things as cocktail parties and the theater, but is not as formal as a tuxedo.

"What I think a man is seeking is variety, and a distinct new length in a jacket will give a distinct new look," Miller said. "It is not to replace existing wardrobes but to augment them. You have single-breasted for one look double-breasted for another. Now you can vary the length for another change."

Miller, who designs for the Village Squire, pioneered in such items as the Edwardian suit and bell bottom trousers for youths. Plus Nehru jackets, turtlenecks for dress, pendant jewelry for men to wear with them and scores of other items.

"You've seen this length in walking suits," he said. "But most of them were in overcoat length and in heavy tweeds for country wear. This is the first time I've seen this done in suiting for party wear. But you could not keep the jacket as a walking suit on indoors—it was too hot. Even then we did very nicely with them in the store."

The accessories for the theater suit are nothing outlandish—shirts and ties very much like shirts and ties worn with business suits, for example. Miller also recommends an Ascot shirt which looks great with the coat and a bright handkerchief for the breast pocket. With it he was wearing two tone hightop button shoes—made with a concealed zipper.

One coat in the new line had very wide peak lapels and was a high buttoning three-button jacket. The length was just above the knee (37 inches) and the back treatment was unusual—two 18 inch non-pressed inverted pleats to give flare, and with darts for shaping. A similar model was a four-button double-breasted.

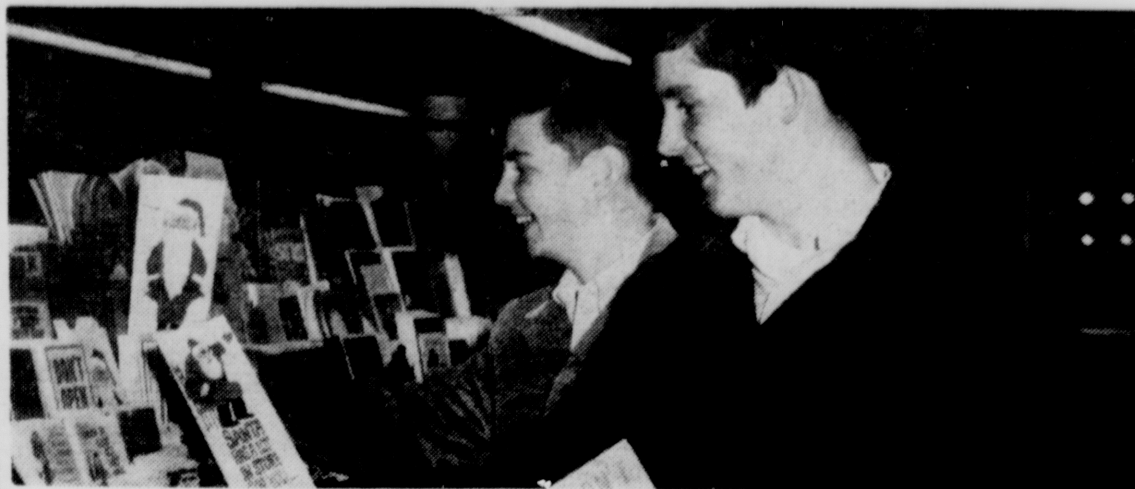

That coat came in worsted flannel and in whipcord, but for an even dressier look Miller designed a six-button double-breasted in navy gabardine with the buttons forming a V shape on the chest, only the lower one buttoning. It had a 5½ inch wide lapel. There were five inverted pleats in the back below the split waist and a back in four panels. Another version was in navy wide wale corduroy.

Another of the frock coats was strictly a show piece—an eye catching garment that receives applause when seen on a runway at a fashion show but one not very many people dare to wear. This one was in a multi-color tartan plaid in mohair and wool. There was a sailor shawl collar with high diagonal breast pockets partly covered by the lapels.

Another offbeat garment was a Suffolk sports jacket which, presumably, is the opposite of a Norfolk sports jacket. This one was in handwoven Peruvian wool and colored with a special batik dye that made it into a series of tan, yellow, brown and dark tan splotches. The Norfolk straps which normally are vertical were curved around to the back to form the pockets.

The back had the two normal vertical straps plus pleats. The cuffs formed a half crescent curling up to a point and had five fancy buttons.

Miller also showed a new form of the old cardigan jacket. This one was a two-button double-breasted in wide wale corduroy in gray.

Flanagans — Everything for Dad and Lad

TIES ARE THE THING—Al Flanagan displays the latest style in ties for Dad and the Lad at his Wall Street establishment. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

UPTOWN KINGSTON
Everything for Dad and the Lad, a shopping slogan that has become a tradition at Flanagans, 331 Wall Street, means exactly what it says.

There is a gift here for every male in your family, or that special boyfriend. All establishments have new ideas and fashions to choose from and Flanagans is no different.

For a special gift take a look at the sports vests, the large selection of ties in the new wide width. And there are also fancy sport shirts in cottons, synthetics and knits. Flanagans also has a large selection of dress shirts including Arrow.

In the hat department there are the conventional Stetsons and Lees and sporters, Cossacks and new fur hats, the latest in men's head wear. For an unusual gift, try an umbrella for dad.

Variety of Accessories

Al Flanagan, the congenial proprietor says the deep tone shirts, some with matching ties are going strong this holiday season.

The wide variety of accessories including sox, belts, toilettries, smoking jackets and dressing gowns are all excellent gift items.

To make an impression on that special man, there are those expensive and luxurious Italian imported knit shirts. You can make him feel like a movie star in one of these.

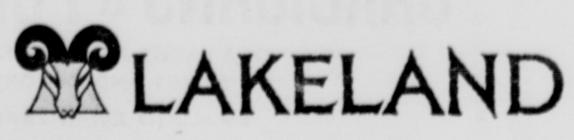

Flanagans is proud of its perfect fit suits and there is a wide selection of styles and colors. This year there are many new styles in men's jewelry, tie clips, pins, money clips and wallets.

Any of these selections will convince your man that you are a woman with impeccable taste.

For an item you never think of on a sunny day, the new Gleneagles all-purpose three-quarter coat which furnishes protection in all kinds of weather, and it has that sporty look. For Dad and the Lad, Flanagan's the place.

Leathers, Furs Top Yule List For That Man in Your Life

Give him something to wear this Christmas and extend his holiday cheer throughout the winter. The new ideas in men's fashion are easy to live with, handsome to look at and fun to wear.

In outerwear, the key word is "shape" and many are in the maxi-lengths, according to the Men's Fashion Association. Big military collars, broad sweeping lapels, belts and double-breasted models add a definite 1970 look to those coats.

Select his outerwear from rugged leathers, luxurious suedes, handsome wools in patterns or plain colors as well as the popular furs and fake furs. The latter have scored with unprecedented speed as men, influenced by the fashions of the ski slopes, have taken the fur look into the city for cold weather wear.

If the budget permits, you can overwhelm him with mink, nutria or a coonskin great coat. Those with more modest purses, however, can still have the full look. Many of the man-made or "fake" furs look real enough to fool a trapper.

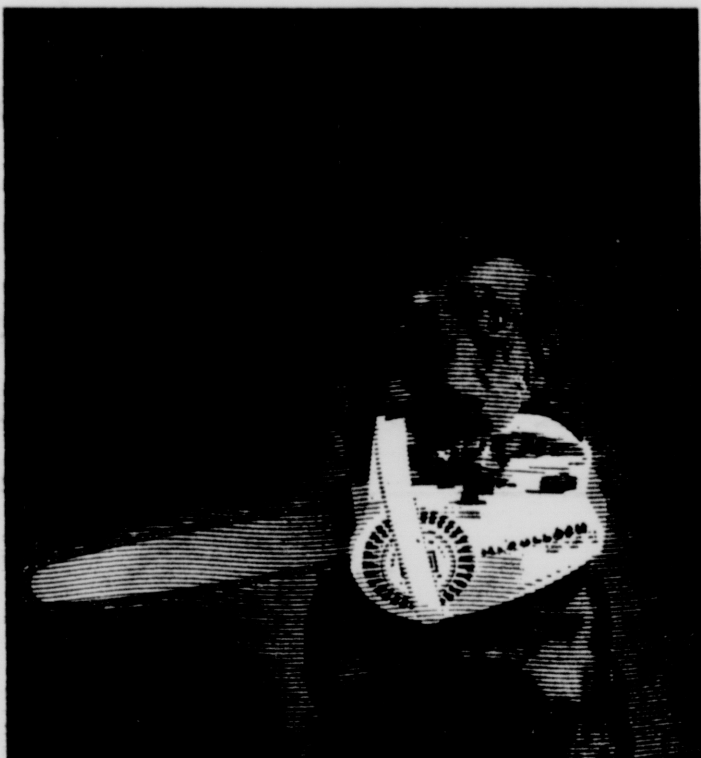

What's a fur, or fake fur, coat without a hat to match? There are "Trooper" models, "Diplomat" styles, some with visors or in fedora shapes to top-off the fur look coats. Fur headgear will be worn with everything from lumberjack shirts and pea coats to dressy business coats.

Felt hats are making their shape of fashion news, too. Brims are wider, shapes are new, the look is youthful and definitely masculine. There are styles for leisure and styles for business in an assortment of colors to flatter his complexion and complement his coats.

Here's a tip on how to present him with a smart country suit or sportcoat. Select one in his favorite color and pattern, be sure that it has the new shape, today's wider lapels, broad pocket flaps and deeper vents—then give him a gift certificate so that he can be properly fitted.

Gift certificates are an excellent way to give him any item that must be precisely fitted. This includes good looking, broad, square-toe shoes or smart new boots, or glove-soft moccasins—all of which he must try on.

If you are looking for new fashion ideas, the sweater counter is where the action is. Belted models offer a youthful look, and very different. Colorful argyles are back in trickier than ever patterns. Sweater-shirts—with either collars and plackets or with collared crew necks—are a unique garment.

Fur Coats for Men At Rafalowsky's

KINGSTON — Fur coats for men — the very latest for the fashion plate in your family — are now available at Herman G. Rafalowsky, clothier, 71 Albany Avenue.

What's good enough for Broadway Joe Namath, is good enough for the important male member of your family. For you girls that leave the room when the pro-football marathon sessions cover the TV screen most of the afternoon and evening, Namath is a prominent quarterback with the New York Jets and they don't call him Broadway Joe for nothing. The dapper ball tosser is THE fashion plate.

Herman G. Says they are the very latest but the style is taking over rather slowly. The three-quarter fur suburbans however are going very well, the noted clothier said.

Christmas displays throughout the store have many ideas for gifts. There is an elaborate special gifts department which displays all accessories, colognes, tie holders, pipe racks, shaving kits and dresser caddies.

Rafalowskys also has special gift items such as a TV lounging robes, sporty dress shirts, solids and stripes with matching ties, men's jewelry and wallets.

There is also a fine selection of formal jackets for that winter cruise.

In the suit department, the Rafalowskys note the return of the double-breasted in a completely new style. There are also top coats in all top brands and sizes and sport jackets, for every occasion.

Mrs. Rafalowsky said the firm has its own tailor shop on the premises for personal supervision in fitting. She noted the Rafalowsky family is thoroughly trained to give the best personal service. She said the store carries the latest, all leaders in fashion and taste in men's apparel.

For dapper headwear there are fur hats and the ever-popular Cossacks for deep winter wear.

Rafalowsky suggests that their customers are the best dressed men in town.
